FDR's Friends Worried Over Fear He's Losing Popularity With People

WASHINGTON — One of the tragic things about every White House incumbent is a condition which best can be summarized in the advertising slogan: "Even his best friend won't tell him."

No one of a President's many friends and advisers seems ever to be quite willing to step up and tell him that he is slipping. This was particularly true of Hoover; and already it is beginning to be true of one of the shrewdest political observers ever to sit in the White House—Franklin Roosevelt.

Within the past month there has been a sickening feeling in the stomach-pits of a host of New Dealers which told them that with the country at large their leader had lost ground.

Despite the favorable gold decision from the Supreme Court, despite the definite business upturn, this feeling has increased.

There are several reasons for their perturbation, among the most important being:

1. The fear that the President, in trying to straddle both the Right and the Left, may fall in between.

2. Huey Long.

Progressive Disappointment

The Progressive group in Cogress, once enthusiastic boosters for Roosevelt, now suffers varying degrees of disappointment, disillusionment and in some cases embitterment. They feel that their good friend has deserted them for the Tory Democrats and Big Business.

Tory Democratic leaders, on the other hand, gleefully announce that they have President under control, but in the same breath — when speaking privately — berate him more bitterly than any Republican. When Senators like Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Cotton Ed Smith of South Carolina, and Tydings of Maryland say about their titular leader in the White House resembles nothing more than what they used to say about Herbert Hoover.

They are chairmen of important committees, however, and Roosevelt, rightly or wrongly, feels he has to play ball with them, so chests swell with the pride of con- their quest.

Then too, a lot of Senators and Congressmen, both Republican and Democratic, always take delight in throwing rocks at the White House. Prior to this session they had not dared; Roosevelt was too popular.

But now, having the World Court example before them, plus constant undercover criticism from alleged Democratic leaders, a lot of the more timid souls have decided that it is safe to come out and take a few pot-shots themselves.

All of which increases the downhill momentum and is all gravy for the Republicans.

The sardonic thing is that the Democrats apparently don't realize that he who destroys his leader destroys himself. For the Democrats are doing most of the undercover knifing.

Huey Long Wedge

Then there is Huey Long.

The president, asked by a caller the other day, what he thought of Huey Long, raised both hands above his head in mock surrender.

Then in more serious tone he said:

It might be just enough of a wedge to swing the Republicans in again.

There are other lesser factors also somewhat worrying. One was the kindly comment which attended Herbert Hoover's visit to New York. His remark about there being "no bannisters to slide down" in the model house, made a hit with a lot of people.

Also there is the undeniable fact

OFFICER QUITS POLICE FORCE, OPPOSES CADY

Raymond Smith To Run For Democratic Nomination For Mayor

OFF FORCE TODAY

New Member Of Police Staff Not Named

Raymond H. Smith, who has served for 14 months as a night police officer, today made a two-fold announcement. First, he is resigning from the police department effective immediately; second, he is a candidate for mayor of the city.

Smith proferred his resignation to Police Chief W. H. Warner when the chief reported for work Monday morning. It thanked the chief, Mayor Cady and the other officials for their co-operation and asked that the resignation become effective at once.

Served On Desk

The officer was appointed to night duty when Mayor Cady took office Jan. 1, 1934. He had been working as a desk officer in the mayor's office prior to his appointment.

His announcement for mayor came as a surprise. Smith is a Democrat. Mayor Cady is the only other avowed candidate for the city office.

Mayor Cady and Safety Director L. T. Shaner had not announced at press-time who would be named to take Smith's place on the police force. They said they had several persons under consideration.

To Announce Chief

The mayor announced Monday that he would announce the identity of the new chief on Thursday with the successor to Chief W. H. Warner going to work on Friday, March 1. Chief Warner has been retired on $50 a month pension by the police pension board.

It is generally believed Officer William McCrady will be handed the chief's badge. The position pays the same as that of a patrolman.

CROP CONTROL FIGHT STARTS; HEARINGS SET

Five Amendments To Result In Interesting, Important Hearings

PROCESSORS ACTIVE

Much Power Would Be Held As Reserve

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Lines were drawn today for a battle over the AAA amendments which would give the federal government power to enforce "economic planning" for all agriculture.

Hearings will be opened tomorrow by a house committee while a senate committee will begin hearings on Thursday. Representatives of 26 major associations of processors are prepared to fight the amendments. Against the processors are spokesmen for leading farm organizations and the influence of the administration. A third element was represented by the National Farmers Union and similar organizations. Their leaders assail Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as a "czar" but berate the processors who handle farm products. The AAA amendments would:

Provide Licenses

Give the AAA power to license processors, such as meat packers, milk dealers, millers.

Through licensing, regulate quotas of farm products flowing to markets and to punish farmers failing to agree to cut production.

Eliminate unfair practices and fix the farmer's share.

Permit establishment of the "ever normal" granary idea, with the government loaning on crops in plentiful years and holding products for lean years.

To regulate marketing, the AAA

WARDEN PLANS OUSTER FIGHT

To Go To Highest Court, He Says; Suspension Illegal, Thomas Contends

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25— A promise of "sensational disclosures" was made by Preston E. Thomas, ousted Ohio penitentiary warden, here today as he drafted an appeal against his removal for filing early this afternoon with the state civil service commission.

Although Thomas has ten days in which to file his appeal, he asserted he would carry the fight at once and declared he would battle his case "through the supreme court if necessary."

One of the grounds on which he will base his fight, Thomas told International News Service, will be that his suspension last January 26 was illegal.

"I was suspended by an order of Mrs. Margaret Allman as welfare director under Governor Davey before she was legally serving as state welfare director," Thomas declared. He added the charge that his removal was ordered "to clear the way for appointment of the governor's hand-picked man"—J. C. Woodard, assistant warden who was named acting warden when Thomas was placed under suspension.

Blanket denial of the charges contained in the removal order was made by Thomas. Seventeen specific charges were listed in the order, covering allegations of "inefficiency, immoral conduct, neglect of duty, malfeasance, nonfeasance," etc.

BUREAU STARTS CAMPAIGN TO IMPROVE RURAL FINANCE

Realizing the deplorable finincial situation Ohio agriculture is in today, officials of the Ohio Farm Bureau have drawn up a comprehensive program of mutual financing, and have outlined a three months' educational program to begin March 1.

To carry on this refinancing program, the farm bureau has set up seven principal goals toward which it will work. In each instance the economic maxim, "whoever finances a business controls it," will be adopted. "There lies the secret of recovery for Ohio agriculture," Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, declared in announcing the campaign. "Let the farmers of this state finance their own industry, and they will gain the control by which to improve their position in the social, political and economic life of the nation."

In each of the state's 88 counties, and in every one of the farm bureau's' 22 districts, meeting will be held to acquaint Ohio farmers with the principles of the program. Farm bureau leaders and other men who are acquainted with the problems of agriculture and rural finance will address these gatherings.

One of the chief purposes of the campaign will be the organization of 10 county credit unions in Ohio. The farm bureau has formed three so far, and is deeply interested in developing the idea further. Only seven farmers are required by law to organize, buy seven shares of stock at either 5 or 10 dollars, and apply for a charter. Anyone is eligible for membership by paying an entrance fee of not more than 25 cents and subscribing for a share of stock.

Other plans include promoting the use of the Farm Bureau Agricultural Credit Corporation, which has at hand funds to take care of the credit needs of farmers for operating expenses campaigning for the financing of county cooperative associations; the installation of ten additional bulk oil plants in the state; a continuous promotion of cooperative activities; and the organization and financing of a farm bureau creamery association and a farm bureau poultry and egg association.

Much of this program will involve a consideration of the credit problem facing the Ohio farmer.

Crocheted and Off the Face is a Spring Favorite

PATTERN 5317

Be ready to greet that first robin in a properly springlike bonnet. And if you want to make a smart impression, choose this off-the-face crocheted hat, designed by Alice Brooks. Fashion has decreed brims so this one is crocheted in a ribbed effect that makes it look like straw. The crown has a slight tendency to become a bonnet—just enough to be alluring. Guimpe, that is so popular now for hats and purses, is the thing to use, for it has just the right stiffness to make this brim turn up real perky. You can trim it with two pom-poms in contrasting colors or some other ornament. The envelope purse is enhanced by the crocheted rope that trims it. In detail, it matches the hat, the body of it being ribbed while the narrow flap is plain.

In pattern 5317 you will find complete instructions for making the set shown; an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main St., Circleville, O.

TIME TO CLEAN UP

THERE is no "sure sign" of spring, but spring should be a "sure sign" of the arrival of that time for the community to clean up. There is no superstition or prophesying about this clean-up sign.

When warm weather has come to stay (until cold weather comes in autumn) every owner of property and every tenant should instinctively feel it his duty to remove the evidences of winter's ravages and to aid and augment nature in her work of re-beautification.

Every spring clean-up program should include disposal of winter's accumulation of litter and decayed vegetation, repairing and repainting buildings, and landscape gardening. Landscape gardening is no longer associated with large estates alone but should be included in the beautification of every home.

Cleanliness about the person or the home costs nothing. A community clean-up need involve no expense, except a moderate amount of labor on the part of the householders. If there ever were excuses for uncleanliness, they were removed long ago.

What is the compensation of a community-side clean-up campaign? It improves the general health of the community by removing deposits that are breeding places of disease germs and disease-carrying insects. A clean town is a better place in which to live than one that is unsanitary and unsightly. And the best community advertising is the appearance of being "cleaned up and painted up."

Circleville attracts much favorable comment on account of its apparent cleanliness at all seasons of the year, so let's get an early start this season and give the old town a thorough house-cleaning.

RELIEF AND AUTOS

TWO RECENT reports, both dealing with important national issues, present a strangely paradoxical situation. One concerns record relief expenditures while the other offers the news that the automobile manufacturers, seeing signs of upturn everywhere, rather confidently expect to turn out 1,000,000 or more cars in the first three months of 1935.

Seemingly, these two reports are irreconcilable: It is not impossible, however, to explain them with at least a reasonable debt to satisfaction. Part of the responsibility for failure to reduce the relief burden borne by the federal government and the states must be assumed by those who administer the relief system and part by the beneficiaries of its functioning.

It is natural for men to find pride in administering large projects. Officials of government are striving constantly to enlarge their operations in order that they may increase their prestige and their powers. But such ambitions are dangerous in the relief field.

They are dangerous to the recipients of relief because continued ease in obtaining the means of sustenance is often harmful to morale, destroying initiative and ambition. They are dangerous also to the taxpayers, who may be reduced to impoverishment by the constant drain on their diminishing resources.

Consequently, public interest is to be served by cutting down relief as fast as possible and by the ruthless elimination of the chronic idlers from the relief lists. Devastating effects can be produced upon society by overdoing relief and the danger is one to be guarded against.

TEMPTING THIEVES

IT is rather difficult to work up a great deal of sympathy for the New York society woman who was robbed a few days ago of jewels valued at $200,000. The victim of the robbery, according to news reports, found a great deal of personal pride and satisfaction in her possession of jewelry valued at $350,000.

In fact, she wore a great part of her collection to the races in Miami and was the sparkling cynosure of all eyes, including those of many artful thieves who found inspiration in the gaudy display. Some of these dishonest chaps followed the woman to her hotel and robbed her room of a part of her jewelry, including pearl necklaces, rings, bracelets, etc. Although the police of the country are searching for the thieves, no trace of them or the stolen jewels has been found.

Responsibility for this robbery, it seems, rests primarily with the victim herself. She choose to make a vulgar display of her wealth in a race-track crowd. And she succeeded so well as to place temptation in the path of men who were weak and who also possessed definite talents as thieves.

Little Sister

by MARGARET WIDDEMER

CHAPTER 51

LEILA LOOKED at it. The sound lay gray-blue and gleaming in the moonlight, with little boats and larger boats of the nearest boat club rocking at anchor. A big autumn moon was pushing redly up the sky. The four acres of Fernwood waters lay orderly and pretty beyond them; the quaint colored houses, a full dozen by now, ready for occupancy with their green lawns, their landscaping, their lighted porches, had an air of completeness and security and youthful prosperity. The big community house was all alight, and the parking space to one side of it was nearly full of cars already. The bathing beach had been completely reclaimed, and the cabanas were complete, too—this was a late autumn, there would be at least a fortnight, perhaps a month, more of bathing—red and yellow awnings, big bright umbrellas, had been set up or left up this night to show how the shore would be by day. She looked back to the dozen defiantly bright houses again, and saw beyond them again excavations, cellars, half-built houses. The place would be all done before frost came . . . and before spring came it would be desolate.

"Good-looking, eh?" said Orton again.

"Good-looking as a mirage," she said.

"We're at the speakers' table," said Orton complacently, as he led her in. He rarely listened when Leila used words he didn't know.

"What's this? The phalanstery dining room?" she asked, as he led her into a long bright room dotted with the conventional little flower-trimmed tables, with the usual amount of darting waiters, up to the customary long white table on an elevation, with the usual men and women in evening dress eating the usual canned crab hors d'œuvre along it.

"Phal—what? Say, Leila, don't go highbrow on me. Got a speech to make, strain enough on the old intellect. It's the casino's ballroom. The regular dining room wouldn't take all the tables. The best people from all the Fernwoods are here. Civic occasion and all that."

"Addison," said Leila, a little dazed, "called it the community house."

"Well, that's all right, funny chap, has funny names for things," said Orton. "It's his Fernwood Waters Casino just the same. And a very good one. Nice cabanas, good pool—I forgot, you were funny about coming over to look at it. Just shows what a chap without any business sense can do if he lets bright people pull him through. DeFries is good. I find he belongs to my fraternity. And, of course, the mater's one of our big minds, if I do say it."

Leila silently attacked her canned crab. There was a very nice orchestra, the one from the Manor Country club, indeed, playing airs from "Roberta" and "All the King's Horses." Above it, the satisfied chatter of an eating populace roared. She scanned them. Yes, most of the Manor people. A lot of the Fernwood Gardens people. All the younger ones she did not know must be the new Fernwood Waters purchasers. She loooked along the table at which she was sitting; there in a tailcoat was Red DeFries, beside him the honey-blonde, comely, tall girl in green, his Marge. There were Jerry and Mary Martin, Mary in a maroon velvet with no back and no shoulders and long skin-tight sleeves, possessively gay with Jerry. There were the older Martins, of course, he paunchy, capable, aggressive-jawed, she glitter-haired, small and diet-thin, a little more lined, more than a little rouged and transformationed, a memento mori, for anybody with eyes, of what Mary would be in twenty years. There were Mayor Gregg, of the Fernwoods, and his wife, adequate, pleasant, tired. In the center of the table behind the fern piece sat, of course, Addison and Bet. Addison had made one last gesture for the people in the only business suit in the house. Bet hadn't. Bet, too, had gone reckless on the family charge account, and was expensive, if madonna-like, in blue and white with pearl trimmings. On Addison's farther side sat little Aunt Minnie in the black silk and old honiton Leila had helped her get into an hour before happy, flushed, and quivering. Beyond her was the president of the Manor Beach club and Mrs. Johnston-Hedges. On the far side of her was a vacant chair. There was no proletariat. None at all.

She turned to Red.

"Where is the proletariat this place is for?" she demanded of him point-blank.

"Good-evening. Oh, that's coming. Is this a festive occasion, I ask you? Marge and I are getting married almost the same time you are, though not so haughtily. Margie, old lamb, observe the only girl that never fell for our Jerry."

Leila and Marge were agreeable to each other; then somebody on the other side of Marge talked to her and Leila went back to silent consumption of the usual large tired half-chicken, the tepid beans and pink sherbet. She occasionally tried to talk to Orton as she wearily worried her lettuce leaf apart. But Orton was preoccupied. He was muttering over and over a humorous anecdote with which he was probably about to begin the speech he had been allotted. He was not a fluent public speaker.

Red DeFries, even, on her other side, was in the same condition. He was doing shorthand on the back of a pack of catalog cards. Occasionally he shuffled them desperately and rubbed out their numbers and renumbered them. Leila wished she had a speech to make herself, in order to have a reason for not paying attention.

The ice cream came and was eaten. The black coffee came and was drunk. Mrs. Johnston-Hedges arose, toastmistress as usual for all the civic doings for miles around the Fernwoods. After the usual humor and the usual compliments to her auditors, she began to admire Addison.

"He has," she finished archly in her deep voice, "in the words of Gilbert and Sullivan, 'pricked that annual blister,' our little neighborly argument between Fernwood Waters and Fernwood Manor about bathing beaches. It is now automatically at an end. For with a casino, cabanas, a pool, and a beach far superior to the parent Fernwood, open to all the daughter Fernwoods at a fee one-quarter of what poor old Fernwood Manor has to charge, Fernwood Waters, under Addison Huntingdon, has given to the younger and gayer Fernwoods a smarter, cheaper, better, more exclusive bathing beach. Armed with this assurance, I am in a position to tell you that the other Fernwoods have officially released their demand to share our poor old beach, before the annual village meeting. In fact, all that we hide-bound manorites need feel," she ended blithely, unheeding Addison's furious face and the efforts he was making to jump up (efforts Bet thwarted), "is that we may not be able to control our desire to ask for a little fun among these delightful cabanas also. But I assure Mr. Huntingdon that we won't, unless we are invited. Thanking him again, I will now turn the meeting over to our mayor, Mr. Gregg, who will introduce the next speaker."

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Lyda Roberti is "disgoosted."

After Paramount made her learn to play the ukelele, in three weeks of intensive study for "College Rhythm," now playing at the Cliftona Theatre, the entire scene was deleted.

Instead, the Polish musical comedy sensation had to perform a dance with Joe Penner, radio comic, making his feature picture debut. So Miss Roberti had to begin over again, learning a trick step from LeRoy Prinz who is directing the chorus sequence.

"In the movies," says Miss Roberti with a trace of impatience, "you're always learning something new. Why once I even had to learn how to roller skate. By the time the picture was ready to shoot I was so sore from falling down that I had to take a week's rest."

"College Rhythm" also features Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie and Helen Mack in the amusing story of the college rivals who disagreed over one girl but agreed over two others. Along with two stirring football sequences and chorus scenes the film features a batch of brand new tunes by Gordon and Revel.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

A SMART SHIFT

WHEN partner has opened the auction and you have at once supported his call, if he makes a minimum raise it may be better to shift to no trumps than to stretch your values into a second assist which you lack. The following hand illustrates this fact. Game was impossible at hearts, but South's shift to 3-No Trumps, requesting the original bidder to go 4-Hearts, if he wished, yielded top score in the duplicate game where the hand was dealt.

	♠ J 10 9 3 ♥ J 9 5 3 2 ♦ A 8 ♣ A J
♠ A Q 8 6 4 ♥ Q 6 ♦ 4 3 2 ♣ K 9 8	W. N. E. S.	♠ 5 2 ♥ A 10 ♦ K J 9 7 6 ♣ 10 7 5 2
	♠ K 7 ♥ K 8 7 4 ♦ Q 10 5 ♣ Q 6 4 3

Bidding went: North, 1-Heart; South, 2-Hearts; North, 3-Hearts; South, 3-No Trumps, which held the contract.

The opening lead was the 6 of spades. Evidently East held no higher spade, and dummy's 9 held the trick, to start off the hearts. If West held a long suit headed by the A-Q, almost certainly he did not hold the Ace of hearts, or he would have shown his spades. I do not understand why he failed to show his suit, without the Ace of hearts. Had he done so it is very improbable that South ever would have ventured the no trump shift with the K-X of spades. The hand probably would have been played at 3-Hearts and failed to go game.

Dummy's lowest heart was led. When East played the 10 South had to guess that East did not have the A-Q left. Fortunately he guessed right. His K won the trick, and a low heart bumped together the Q and Ace, as South had hoped. He led back his last spade. The K won to West's Ace. That player returned his top diamond. Dummy played the 8 and East was in with his K. The 7 of diamonds (the original fourth-best card) lost to dummy's Ace. The J of spades was led. West's Q won the fourth defensive trick.

West led a club. The declarer could not afford to take any finesse at that stage, as the loss of a club trick would defeat the contract a trick. Dummy's Ace was played. The declarer entered with a heart. He led his good Q of diamonds. Dummy's J of clubs was discarded. Dummy won the next heart trick, then led off its last two cards—another good heart and the 10 of spades—just fulfilling its game contract.

Provided West shows his spades, perfect defense against hearts may defeat a contract of 3-Hearts. There will be 2 spade tricks taken at once. A return lead of that suit may be ruffed with the Ace, making West's Q of hearts good for another trick, with the K of diamonds ready to win a fifth trick.

Prevention, Early Treatment Head Off Hand Infections

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IF THERE is one thing which is evident from what we have been saying about infections of the hand this week, it must be that prevention is the important thing.

Dr. Clendening

The infections come from sticking our curious little hands around into hard and sharp and infected places, and we should be prepared to protect the hand with some sort of covering when we are doing that, or to treat any break in the skin of the hand with great respect, and also with some strong antiseptic solution, such as tincture of iodine.

In nothing is proper prevention and early treatment more important in heading off serious consequences than in the handling of a felon. The word "felon", the word "whitlow" and "paronychia" are often used interchangeably by surgeons. Felon and whitlow are practically the same thing. As felon is the commoner term, we will use it.

Felon means "one guilty of a felony; a wicked, cruel person." So it has been applied to cruel infection. It is an infection of the pulp of the terminal part of a finger, which eventually involves the bone. It may start innocently enough. A housewife, for instance, pricks her finger with a carpet tack; a little wound apparently heals, but after three days the end of the finger becomes red, the skin over the pulp becomes elevated, and there is a throbbing, wearing pain.

In the course of a few more days this finger end will become fluctuating, and pus will make its way to the surface, open spontaneously and drain, but the surgeon knows that it is often disastrous to wait until this happens spontaneously by Nature's methods, because in the course of the process the blood vessels to the bone become involved and obstructed and the bone dies, so that frequently the end of the finger has to be sacrificed. If drainage is made early, even sometimes before fluctuation occurs, this unhappy termination may frequently be prevented.

Paronychia is also an infection of the end of the finger, but it is closely associated with the nail. In fact, the word paronychia means "around the nail". It is the common nursery "run-around". A child has a hangnail, pulls it off until bleeding occurs, and then infection enters in.

Paronychia may become a felon in the sense that the infection invades the deeper structures and threatens the bone, but it is usually possible, by poulticing and drainage at the proper time, to evacuate the pus and leave a minor wound, which heals promptly without the serious consequences named.

Let me point out again, in closing, that the most important part of the handling of these cases is proper prevention and, failing that, early intelligent treatment.

UNSOUND MIND BLAMED FOR 'PLANE' SUICIDE OF GIRLS

FATHER TELLS STORY TODAY

Jury Returns Finding; Envoy Questioned Concerning Aviators' Deaths

ROMFORD, Eng., Feb. 29—Jean and Elizabeth Du Bois, American girls who leaped from an airplane near here last Thursday, "committed suicide while of unsound mind," read the verdict of a coroner's jury here today. The verdict was a formal one, seldom departed from in cases of this kind in England.

ROMFORD, Eng., Feb. 25 — A few miles from the spot where his daughters, Jane, 29, and Elizabeth, 23, leaped to death from an airplane last week, oCert Du Bois, American consul general at Naples, took the witness stand in a cold gloomy police court here today, and sadly told a coroner's jury the story of the girls' last gay days in Italy.

Smuggled into the room through a side door, Du Bois took the oath and gave his testimony in a scarcely audible voice. It was evident that he had to fight to control his feelings.

To the questioning of Coroner C. E. Lewis, the father said that he last saw Jane and Elizabeth Feb. 15.

On that date, he testified, they "left for London to take an apartment to do some writing. They were to have been joined later by their mother and my sister from the United States.

Devoted to Each Other

"They generally travelled together. They were devoted to each other and always inseparable."

The coroner closely questioned the diplomat about the accident near Messina, Italy, in which Flying Officer John Alexander Forbes and Flight Lieut. Henry Longfield Beatty of the British Royal Air force were killer.

Grief over the death of the two dashing officers was said to have been the principal cause of the pretty young girls' suicide.

His daughters had not heard of the crash, which occurred Feb. 15, when they left Naples, Du Bois said.

"They had made the acquaintance of the officers, who were around the house a good bit for ten days preceding their departure," he said.

"Was there anything between one of these officers and your daughter?" the coroner inquired.

"The younger (Jane) was fond of Forbes in the way one might get fond of some one in ten days," replied Du Bois.

Before the supper a number of girls passed tests in table-setting. After a short business session, the evening was passed in games and stunts, including an original, impromptu play. The kaiser and Roosevelt in Berlin

Theodore Roosevelt

Kaiser Wilhelm

WHEN THE United States entered the World war, no American was more eager to get into the thick of the fight than the late President Theodore Roosevelt who had led a crack cavalry troop in the Spanish-American war. Although he did not go, Roosevelt wanted to lead a force to France to battle the troops of Kaiser Wilhelm, with whom he had been on friendly terms not so many years before. Returning from his African hunt in 1910, Roosevelt made a really triumphal tour through Europe, lecturing at various cities. One of his stopping points was Berlin, where he visited the kaiser.

CHAMPIONS OUST ASHVILLE

NEW HOLLAND IN RARE FORM

Shifting Defense Stops Scoles; Monroe-Ashville Girls Vie For Title

WALNUT-ATLANTA MEET

Darby Given Scare But Defeats Tiny Monroe Five

New Holland again upset the dope bucket, Saturday evening, defeated the Ashville varsity and almost assured itself of a position in the finals of the county tournament to be played next Saturday night. New Holland will meet Scioto-twp in a quarter-final game Friday at 9 o'clock and should have little trouble winning, then tangles with the winner of the Jackson-Deercreek game in the semifinals Saturday at 3 o'clock.

Monroe-twp girls likewise came through Saturday night to defeat Walnut-twp after a foul-shooting contest which was decided upon as the result of a 15-15 deadlock which prevailed at the close of their game with Walnut-twp's girls.

It was decided to have the three offensive players of each team shoot one foul with those made being added to the score. It required three turns for each girl before Monroe won, the final score being 20-18. In the third effort all three Monroe girls completed their shots while Reber was the only Walnut-twp cager to sink her toss.

Faces Ashville Sextet

By virtue of the victory Monroe will meet the Ashville girls for the championship at 7 o'clock next Saturday. Ashville had little trouble beating Darby-twp girls, 20-11, although the Ashville margin was only three points at halftime.

The score of the New Holland-Ashville boys game, played before a packed auditorium at 7 o'clock, was 33-25 with big Everett Landman again providing the fireworks although it was the defense worked out by Coach Shadel Saunders to keep the ball away from Jim Scoles that decided the issue. Ashville on two different occasions had beaten New Holland in the regular season. Last year Ashville was the tournament favorite but lost to New Holland in the second round.

The defeat prevents Ashville from entering the district class B tourney.

The afternoon's play started with a hard-fighting Monroe team throwing a scare into the camp of the big Darby-twp team only to gradually fall behind losing by a 31-25 score. The size and shooting ability of Hicks and Bob Green, center and forward, spelled defeat for Monroe. Long was the star of the Monroe team.

Atlanta Runs Wild

The Atlanta, Perry-twp, team with Stevenson and Bentley running wild swamped a fighting but pitifully weak Washington team, 46-6. Stevenson and Bentley each tallied 18 points. The passing of Campbell made possible many of the points counted by these youths.

Walnut-twp, only hope of the eastern half of Pickaway-co in the boys' tourney, was forced in the first half but pulled away from Muhlenberg after the half-time intermission. The final score was 35-22 with Art Kaiser getting 15 points, 14 in the last half.

The Jackson-Saltcreek game played after the New Holland-Ashville joust was a thriller, 26-24, although poor basketball prevailed. Saltcreek took an early lead but lost it with Jackson pulling ahead at the end.

Dispute Over Score

There was a dispute concerning the correct score on this game, three of the books at the scorers' table showing it to be 26-24 for Jackson while three others were 26-24 for Saltcreek. The book of Official Scorer Earl Hickle which was in Jackson's favor will probably stand.

Kroger Babb was, as usual, on top the ball at all times as the referee.

Friday's games start at 7 o'clock with Darby and Pickaway meeting. At 8 Perry meets Walnut in what should be a mighty good game, then the New Holland and Scioto game comes at 9 with the Jackson team meeting Deercreek at 10.

There are no girls' games Friday evening.

The semifinals will begin at 2 o'clock Saturday.

OWENS TO SEEK BROAD LEAP MARK

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — Jesse Owens, the ebony express on Ohio State University's track team, today was being hailed as one of the United States' brightest track prospects for the 1936 olympic games after his stellar showing in the National A. A. U. games in New York Saturday night.

Owens retained his broad jump title by clearing 25 feet, nine inches. The world outdoor mark for the performance is 26 feet, 2 1-8 inches now held by Chuhei Nambu of Japan. Owens, it was believed, has a good chance to break that record if he gets plenty of outdoor work this year.

The negro star proved himself a versatile performer when he lowered the world's record for the 60-meter dash in the semi-finals to 6.6 seconds to defeat Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette. However, Owens got away to a poor start in the final heat and was beaten by Ben Johnson, Columbia negro, who equalled the 6.6 seconds record set earlier by Owens.

For the remainder of the year he will continue to train on race tracks here and at Bay Meadows, and then Azucar will be groomed for the grand national steeplechase at Aintree, England, next year, Alger said.

SANTA ANITA TRACK, Arcadia, Cal., Feb. 25— Twenty Grand, contender in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, today was on his way to Red Bank, N. J., accompanied by other members of the Greentree stable. With him were Early Call, Peradventure, Big Beau and Gillie.

CBL TO ENTER CAGE TOURNEY VOTE DECIDES

Statement Made As Officials of Loop Vote to Reverse Decision

ASK THREE CLASSES

Local Cagers Pleased With League's Ballot

Circleville and all other Central Buckeye league cage teams will participate in the central district basketball tournament, it was decided at a meeting Saturday in Columbus.

The league teams had previously voted to remain out of the tournament unless teams were reclassified according to size. As the league now stands Circleville, considered a class A school, must compete with such enormous schools as those of the ilk of Columbus Central.

Members of the varsity team were unanimous in their plea to Principal E. I. Gephart last week to cast his vote for participation.

Other class A teams which will enter are Delaware, Grandview, Bexley and Westerville with Marysville taking part in the class B.

The following statement was made by league officials at the close of the meeting:

"Due to the request of Central district athletic board that representatives of he Central Buckeye league enter the tournament league officers met at the Neil House Saturday and decided to take part again this year.

"The circuit postponed the former decision to withdraw from further competition in the district meet, until more equitable reclassificaion according to enrollment is adopted. This action was taken pending definite action on the reclassification by the state board.

"The Central Buckeye league plans to submit its suggestions for a questionnaire on reclassification, which could be presented in turn by the state board to all member schools of the Ohio High school Athletic association.

"This plan proposes that there be three classes. Class A would include schools having over 350 boys enrolled. Class B would include schools having enrollment of 150 to 350 boys and all of the present Class B schools not now playing in county tournaments. Class C would include all schools having an enrollment of less than 150 boys.

"Under this plan the present Class B would remain the same. The new group would be formed practically from a division of present Class A schools."

BUCKEYES MEET MICHIGAN TEAM

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — After helping to drop Purdue's Boilermakers into second place in the Big Ten basketball race by a one-point victory Saturday night, Ohio State's cage squad prepared to wind up its season with Michigan next Saturday night.

With the Wolverine tilt, Capt. Bill Beitner of Dover will play his last collegiate basketball game for the Bucks. Coach Harold G. Olsen also will lose Jack Wilson and Chester Wendt by graduation.

However, he still will have Tippy Dye of Pomeroy, Earl Thomas of Ashland and Warren Whitlinger around whom to build a team next year.

The Michigan game will be an anti-climax for the Bucks, particularly after they beat Purdue, 40 to 39 Saturday night. Not only did it avenge an early season defeat but it helped drop Purdue into second place as Wisconsin beat Michigan to assume the lead.

Purdue, however, can go back into a tie for first place with the Badgers if they beat Indiana tonight.

ASHVILLE GRANTED LEAGUE FRANCHISE

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — One member still was needed today to round out the eight-team central Ohio baseball league.

Seven clubs were awarded franchises at a meeting here yesterday. The Columbus Police nine was the only new member and the others were Ashville, Gahanna, Grove City, New Albany, Obetz and Brice, the latter the 1934 pennant winner.

Schedules will be arranged at a meeting here March 12 and the season will open April 21.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Some Gleanings

High point men in the first round of games in the county tournament were Stevenson and Bentley of Atlanta each with 18—Eight athletes were thrown out of games Saturday on personal fouls: they were Liff of Darby, E. Walters of Monroe, Bausum of Walnut, C. Dean of Muhlenberg M'Cune of New Holland, Thompson and Speakman of Jackson and K. Near of Darby, the latter being the only girl—Fewest fouls were called in the Washington-Perry game, 13 on the former, five on the latter—No team went through its first round game without a substitute, Perry used only one, Lamb for Benley; Muhlenberg used one, Huffer for Hill; New Holland one, Ater for McCune and Saltcreek used one, George for C. Dean * * * Dr. A. D. Blackburn, tournament manager, did not see any game remaining at the ticket window all the time—In all of New Holland's games this year he has seen only a few periods * * *

Drove Five Hours

Kroger Babb, tourney official, drove to Circleville from Bellefontaine Friday night through a sleet storm leaving the Logan-co city at 11 p. m. and arriving here at 4:10 a. m.—Babb hasn't seen his wife and kiddy since last Tuesday having officiated every night during the past week * * * He says Greenfield is going to be tough to defeat in a tournament * * *

Cornelius Did Stuff

'Tis a tough handicap to have a cognomen in front of his name like Helfrich of the New Holland team has but he surely played basketball Saturday night in the tourney upset—Cornelius, it is, but his pals make it easier by calling him Neely or just plain Neel—He scored 10 points, four the first half and six the second, to really win the ball game for New Holland—He provided trouble from an unexpected source * * *

Three Fouls Costly

The fact that Jim Scoles, Ashville's center, was permitted to play big Ev Landman even after he had committed his third foul appeared foolish to us—It stood to reason that Scoles was not going to touch Landman and as a result the big fellow caged three easy buckets after that—Steinbrook, Young or Millar were all available and either would have done better than Scoles did with the threat of a trip to the bench facing him—Baker, Ashville guard, had a decided off-night * * * Ashville fans don't care so much for the tourney but the fact that they do not get to see their team in the district tournament at Westerville is what hurts—Ashville has made splendid showings against Columbus Central, North, West and Aquinas this year in practice tilts and the team's followers believe the quintet had possibilities in the district meet * * *

Bartons' Son Cager

The little boy, who played on the basketball court during intermissions, is a son of Robert L. Barton, Monroe-twp superintendent—The kidder wore a jersey with the Monroe 'M' on its front

KITCHEN SUFFERS BADLY CUT EYE

Ray Kitchen, Stoutsville boy's coach, formerly of Atlanta, who has been very ill with a severe cold remained away from the Fairfield-co tournament until his team had almost completed its losing game with Liberty Union Saturday afternoon. On arriving at the tourney he crowded up to get information on time left to play and was accidentally bumped by a spectator in such a manner as to break his glasses dangerously cutting his left eye.

Severe pain of the injury caused his to lapse into unconsciousness in the lockerroom where a Lancaster doctor was called to treat him.

The Emery club will play the A. & S. detachment of Fort Hays, Columbus, at 7:30 p. m. Monday at St. Philip's parish house.

The club team has been playing good basketball and will give the soldiers a good game.

Manager-Coach Cuz Dumm expects to use Leasure, Steele, Friece, Porter and Frenk in his starting lineup.

Washington Merry-go-round

In The Dark

None of these things are so serious that they could not be stemmed if taken in hand early enough. But, as with every President, no ones likes to be a harbinger of bad news, and so Roosevelt is not getting the entire picture.

There was a day when he would have sensed this undercurrent immediately. During the campaign, for instance, he had his ear to the ground every minute. Moley, Louey Howe, and Roosevelt himself were getting hourly bulletins from every part of the country.

But now Moley has become a worshipper at the shrine of Big Business. Louey Howe is sick and more isolated than Roosevelt. And the President, himself, necessarily is engrossed in the terrific strain and routine of office.

All he hears is the raucous voice of that machine politician, James Aloysious Farley, who thinks that to win in 1936 he only has to appoint an Irish Democrat as postmaster and, another as county chairman throughout the United States of America, and who already is bragging:

"1936? Aw, it's already in the bag!"

Chosen by Duquesne

Christy Flanagan

Elmer Layden's successful regime at Duquesne university had much to do with selection of Christy Flanagan, another former Notre Dame football player, as head coach. Flanagan has just been signed by the Pittsburgh school.

OHIO CHARITY CHIEF FIRED BY DIRECTOR

Miss Atkinson "Notified" by Mrs. Allman That Position Is Ended

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — While battle lines were drawn for the fight over the post of warden of Ohio penitentiary, it was disclosed here today that Miss Mary Irene Atkinson, superintendent of charities of the Ohio Public welfare department, has been summarily dismissed.

Confirmation of her dismissal was made by Miss Atkinson in a statement in which she declared that last Thursday she was notified verbally by Mrs. Margaret Allman, state welfare director, "that my successor would take over my office March 1."

"I was not asked to resign," Miss Atkinson's statement said.

Has Parallel Case

Dismissal of Miss Atkinson, who is a cousin of H. S. Atkinson, former chairman of the Ohio State university board of trustees and who is a Democrat, was regarded here as a parallel to the discharge recently of Miss Louise Stitt, Ohio State university economics instructor, as head of the minimum wage division.

Miss Stitt was removed to make an opening for a "vote-getter," it was brought out.

Disclosure of Miss Atkinson's dismissal came as Preston E. Thomas removed as warden of Ohio penitentiary, began mapping plans to fight his ouster. Warden Thomas has declared he will carry his battle to retain the wardenship through the civil service commission and to the supreme court if necessary.

Formal removal charges against Thomas were announced Saturday night. They contained seventeen specific charges. Thomas has 10 days in which to appeal to the civil service commission.

HUNT HEX HEALERS AS BOY SLASHES BABY BROTHER

Nurse Elsie Talley and Infant James Fritz

John Fritz, Jr. Mrs. Fritz Floyd Fritz

Campaign against ancient superstition in Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, followed slashing of eight-month-old James Fritz at his home near Williamsport, by his five-year-old brother, John Jr., after John was reported "cured" of a visitation of evil spirits by a so-called faith healer. It was estimated 30 of the "pow-wow doctors" would be arrested. Slashing of the baby is said to have followed a visit to the Fritz home by a hex doctor who said a few words over John, and then advised that the boy be left alone in a room with the baby. John is said to have inflicted several deep cuts on his baby brother's head after the "cure". Nurse Elsie Talley is shown holding the baby in a Williamsport hospital, and at right are Mrs. Fritz, the mother, and two of her children.

Meaning of "Junket"

The word junket as often applied to congress was originally applied to a banquet, or a picnic or excursion with feasting but it has come to mean a trip at public expense by government officials to some distant post, territory or public works for the purpose, they claim, of investigating conduct or for inspection. Congressmen, especially, have been noted in the past for their junkets to distant regions flying the American flag.—Pathfinder Magazine

SALES TAX RULINGS

The sales tax section of the State Tax Commission has issued a number of rulings affecting various lines of business. Those of interest to Pickaway-co residents will be published in this column at intervals.

FILING BILLS OF SALE

The vendor's portion of the prepaid tax receipts must be firmly attached to an automobile bill of sale which the county clerks accepts for filing before such bill of sale will be accepted for recording.

The consumers' portion of the prepaid tax receipts must be firmly affixed to the bill of sale which is to be retained by the purchaser of an automobie before the county clerks will accept the bill of sale for recording.

Bills of sales which are not accompanied by the vendors' and consumers' portion of the prepaid tax receipts as outlined above will not be accepted by clerks of courts.

MORTICIANS

Morticians must collect the tax on the sales of items of tangible personal property furnished by them in connection with their services. The tax does not apply where the sales are made to the state or any of its political subdivisions.

Where it is the practice of the mortician to charge a lump sum for the funeral, such sum including the charge for the casket complete, embalming and care of the remains, hearse, limousine, use of funeral chapel and establishment, and professional services, the tax is computed on the basis of the entire charge.

If, however, the items of personal property furnished are segregated in the bills to the consumer, the tax will be computed on the price charged for the tangible personal property furnished.

Languages of the World

The languages of the world, according to origin, history of nationality, are placed in the following great groups: (1) Indo-European languages (including Teutonic, Romance, Slavonic, Keltic, Iranian, Armenian and Indian languages); (2) Ura-Altaic languages; (3) Caucasian; (4) Malay-Polynesian; (5) the monosyllable or isolated languages; (6) Japanese-Korean languages; (7) Hamitic-Semitic; (8) Bantu languages; (9) languages of the interior of Africa; (10) Dravidian; (11) American Indian There is another group called "unclassified languages."

TWO PAY FINES

Vendon Williams, 22, and Frank Boyd, 32, both of Orient, paid fines of $5 and costs when they were taken before Squire H. O. Eveland, Monday, on charges of intoxication. They were arrested by Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Aulton Cain, New Holland, was released from the county jail Monday when his wife withdrew charges of assault and battery. He had been bound to the grand jury by Squire H. O. Eveland.

"Little Minds With Big Voices"

It is probable that if science could devise an apparatus capable of weighing and measuring the responsibility for all the things that go wrong in the world, it would be found that most of mankind's errors in running its affairs arise from oratory. Through the ages, glib tongues have wagged, and the world has wagged with them. Little minds with big voices have an entirely disproportionafe influence upon human affairs. Silver tongues carry weak men into power, put bad laws on our statute books and trick people into permitting enactment of worse ones when they fail. A nation of mutes probably would become the most wisely governed people of all time. — Northwestern Miller.

Value of Vacation

Scientists say a strenuous vacation often is better than a quiet vacation if it is a change from ordinary modes of living.

Foreign Postage

To send a letter to any part of the world, it is necessary merely to affix a 5-cent stamp or its equivalent, says G. R. Turner, in the Kansas City Times. The only exception is the 3-cent rate between the United States and Canada and the rate of like amount between Spain and the Americas. The revenue from the postage goes always to the country in which the stamp is purchased, for every nation delivers free and uncounted all mail delivered within its own borders. One country charges another only when it transports for that country mail addressed to a third country.

Legend

An old Indian legend: When plants and animals were created they were told to stay awake and watch for seven nights. The first night nearly all the animals kept awake. The next night several dropped to sleep. The third night still more went to sleep. At last on the seventh night, only the owl, the panther and a very few of the animals still were awake. Therefore these have the power to see and move about in the dark. Even the trees went to sleep. Only the cedars, the pine, the spruce, the holly and laurel were awake all seven nights. For that reason they are always green.—The Earth.

"Growing Pains"

Those vague, ambiguous pains in children which are popularly known as "growing pains" are entirely misnamed. Such pains are probably associated with rheumatism, according to Jacobi, who first clearly saw the clinical relationship between growing pains and articular rheumatism and even endocarditis. The medical scientist noted that uncomplicated muscular rheumatism is rare in young children, and at that time he wrote: "'Growing pains' are not infrequently inflammatory rheumatism, and endocarditis of later years may be traced back to the growing pains which are but dimly remembered." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Gates of Sorrow"

Babel Mandeb, a body of water with a name meaning "gates of sorrow," is a strait connecting the Indian ocean and the Red sea. It separates the southeastern part of Arabia from the continent of Africa. Near the African coast are the volcanic islets, Eight Brothers. The strait offers so many dangers to small vessels that the name meaning gates of sorrow was given to it.

ADVICE TO WOMEN

ALL women at some period of their lives need a strengthening tonic like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The young woman who suffers from monthly pains, the expectant mother who has nausea and other disagreeable symptoms, or the middle-aged woman who experiences "heat flashes" will find this "Prescription" a dependable tonic. Read what Mrs Mabel Gardner of 1214 Wilson Ave. Youngstown, Ohio, said: "I was in a genera run-down condition. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and a few bottles soon had me well strengthened and back to normal health." New size, tablets 50 cts., liquid $1.00. Large size, tabs. or liquid, $1.35. IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ¾ of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. The Lamp Designed Especially To Save Your Eyes

THE Sight Meter, shown above, measures the amount of light you are getting and tells how much light you need for various purposes.

The tag, at right, identifies the I. E. S. study lamp. See our large display of approved floor lamps and table lamps. Ask about the new two filament bulb and glass bowl reflector.

I. E. S. Lamp Is Scientifically Correct

HERE is the new I. E. S. study lamp—a lamp combining attractiveness with lighting efficiency.

It is high enough to spread the light over a wide surface. It has a specially treated shade which reflects rather than absorbs the rays. It is equipped with an opal glass diffuser, that allows some light to strike the printed page directly while the rest is thrown against the ceiling . . . thus eliminating harmful contrasts.

Unlike the old, inefficient type of table or floor lamp, this new approved lamp gives a soft uniform glow—ideal for reading, study, or other close work.

Every I. E. S. study lamp is built to specifications prepared by the Illuminating Engineering Society and is endorsed by the Electrical Testing Laboratories.

FOURTH ANNUAL COOKING SCHOOL TO OPEN TUESDAY

1:30 IS HOUR SET TO BEGIN

Mrs. Thurn Again in Charge of School; Pencils, Notebooks Essentiai to Patrons

Good cookery has made more happy homes than Paris gowns. Well planned meals of healthful, nourishing foods have saved more lives than rest cures and hospitals. Succulent dishes make brighter eyes and prettier complexions than a shelf full of cosmetics; these are some of the maxims of Mrs. George O. Thurn who begins her exciting big Cooking School tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock in Memorial hall.

The final preparations for The Herald Cooking School, are under way. Foods in boxes and crates have been delivered to the kitchen. The dairy products, fruits, loaves of bread and bags of flour and other good things are arriving, refrigerator and range are connected and everything is in readiness for the opening at 1:30 o'clock.

This final preparation is in the capable hands of Mrs. Thurn. She has conducted Cooking Schools before thousands of American women; she has been trained in sound Home Economics principles and has a long practical experience as homemaker and housekeeper; she has traveled widely to inform herself of new developments in the laboratories of the great American manufacturers and in the laboratories of schools and colleges where new developments and discoveries add new interest to homemaking, every year. Mrs. Thurn brings the results of her school, traveling and long experience as a lecturer to the women of Circleville tomorrow. She speaks with enthusiasm for she believes in the vital importance of good cookery. She has charm and poise as well, which endear her to the thousands of women who have heard her in other cities. Every recipe, in the many good ones she will prepare and give out tomorrow and on the following days of the School, is a product of her fine experience as a housekeeper and home economics specialist.

Her stage kitchen represents the newest wares of the merchants of Circleville, for the modern labor-saving and time-saving equipment demanded by this homemaking authority is to be found right here in the shops of our city.

With all of this fine equipment and abundance of groceries, Mrs. Thurn's message is to be directed to the housekeeper who has but little to spend as well as to women who can afford to be a little lavish in their kitchens. Economy, low cost budgets, simple cookery have an important place in each of her programs. For the new housekeeper, the bride, she will point out new ideas for labor-saving and time-saving, suggestions for planning menus, for planning parties and entertaining.

For the long experienced housewife, as well as brides, Mrs. Thurn has some delicious and unusual recipes printed and ready to distribute at every session to all who attend, in addition to the new dishes she will describe and prepare on the platform. The recipes are free of course and many of the prepared dishes will also be given away at each session.

Bring pencils and notebooks, to jot down ideas and recipes. Come early to get the best seats; plan to come every day, for not only are the gifts such as filled market baskets and cooked dishes given away each day but those who have been faithfully attending each session, have greater chances of carrying home the big gifts which the local merchants are contributing to the School.

THE ACCOUNTANT

The headmistress was questioning the children about their agea.

"How old were you last birthday?" she asked one small pupil.

"Seven, ma'am," said the boy.

"And how old will you be next birthday?"

"Nine, ma'am."

"Nonsense!" said the teacher. "If you were seven last birthday, how can you be nine next?"

"Well," was the reply, "you see, ma'am, I'm eight today!"

This is an excellent example of the type of wear that will be walking down Park avenue in the Easter parade. It consists of a tannish-gray shirtmaker dress topped by a plaid coat of the same material but bright blue and white. The collar and cuffs are snow fox. Five Minutes Important In Brewing of Fine Tea

That great enjoyment may come from little things is well illustrated by the fact that the investment of a mere five minutes may produce perfect tea, it was pointed out by Mrs. George Thurn, Home Economics expert, who is lecturing at the Memorial Hall this week.

And yet, strange as it may seem, many modern housewives—often, even knowing better—attempt to cheat a little on the time, fooling themselves that the beverage so made is good enough, Mrs. Thurn deplored, adding that "good enough" is only a sad, weak apology for "good."

"More than three centuries ago Shakespeare wrote 'As he brews so shall he drink.' I don't whether that immortal poet had tea in mind when he wrote this," the speaker continued. "But it doesn't call for poetic license to say it's perfectly applicable to the subject of tea preparation. For there is as much difference between improperly and properly brewed tea as there is between a perfect drink made to inspire and enjoy, and an indifferent one which is gulped down and mercifully forgotten."

After scoring those who would deny their families and friends the necessary five minutes it takes to prepare tea that is a delight and beneficial, the lecturer pointed out that black teas are preferable to pale, weaker teas whose leaves have not been properly treated and fermented after picking. These black teas come principally from India, and some from Ceylon and Java.

The lecturer explained that proper preparation is not so much an art as it is a necessity, if the richness and fragrance of Nature's oils and flavor are to be completely drawn from the right tea leaf.

She then demonstrated by brewing tea on the platform before a large audience, and explained that all the facts about the choice and preparation of palatable and beneficial tea were revealed at a meeting of home economics experts recently when L. Beling, Director of the India Tea Bureau in the United States, discussed the subject.

The following simple brewing formula is recommended by experts, said the lecturer;

"The water must be actively and actually boiling. Merely steaming water is not enough. When the water is 'mad boiling hot' the teapot should be rinsed thoroughly with it so that the pot is completely heated or steamed. Then pour onto the leaves exactly the quantity of water for the number of cups to be served. Last, and most important, let the tea brew for five minutes. At the end of that time the tea brew can be poured into another pot for serving—the idea being to separate the leaves from the tea."

The familiar question of why tea is cooling in hot weather and warming in cold was answered with extracts from a treatise by Robert Hutchison and V. H. Mottram of London. They were quoted to the effect that tea warms the body when cold by making the circulation more brisk, as the constituents in tea help to dilate the superficial blood vessels and render the skin moist. For the same reason a cup of hot tea tends to cool the body in hot weather by moistening the skin and increasing evaporation from the surface. The same authorities, after years of study, declare that the correct time for infusing tea is fully five minutes, and thus agree with Director Beling that such time is required to draw out all the good qualities with which Nature endowed black tea.

One of the most absurd of the fabrications which have sometimes been mentioned in connection with tea was exploded by the lecturer with a quotation from Dr. C. R. Harler, who says, in his book "The Culture and Marketing of Tea", "The idea of the stomach lining being affected adversely by tea is one to be mentioned only to be dismissed as foolish. It is difficult to see how tannin and its products can exert any important degree of astringency or acidity at any stage. A cup of tea contains no more tannin than a four - ounce glass of claret or a two-ounce glass of an astringent red wine."

Returning to the subject of proper tea brewing, the lecturer emphasized that it takes not less than five minutes for the boiling water properly to dilate or expand the leaves to the necessary point of exuding the natural oils and juices they contain. Three minutes or even four only serve to draw out part of the good in tea. Underbrewed tea is not only tasteless, but means so much money wasted, she said.

"Farm Fresh" Milk Isn't Pure Enough For Circle City Dairy

Milk "fresh from the Cow" can be mighty fine milk. But it isn't fine enough for Circle City Dairy Customers. We have to be absolutely sure of the purity of the milk we sell you. And the only way to make sure is to "give it the works" ourselves.

"Giving it the works" is a large order. The finest cows in the country are on our payroll—and we rush their milk to our dairy—in our plant we test the milk for richness and pay a bonus for extra butter fat. We test it for sweetness and we test it for sediment.

And then to make sure our instruments aren't playing any tricks, we pasteurize every drop of milk in sight. Pasteurizing makes milk doubly safe — safe for the tiniest baby in hottest weather. Circle City Dairy Milk has all the rich flavor of "Farm Fresh" Milk. Its delivered to your door as pure as modern science can make it. It's Festival and Mating Time Time Down in Papua; Lasts Four Months

By International News Service

PORT MORESBY, Papua, Feb. 25—Women girdled with raw meat: Dancers showered with fruit and flowers:

Villages heaped with food.

These are some of the sights to been seen anywhere in Papua just now—last weeks of a "harvest festival" that lasts nearly a year and explains in part the fascination of the South Seas for white men.

The festival starts in November, goes on through December and January, and now, in February, it is at last drawing to a close.

What is left of the year—from now till the beginning of November—is spent in preparing for the next harvest festival.

Fields and gardens are specially laid out and tended so that their products shall do justice to the prolonged celebrations.

Guests converge in their hundreds on the villages from the surrounding districts. They arrive singing and brandishing their spears.

As they enter the village they are met by their hosts who beat down the raised spears with wands of sugar cane.

On the "village green"—the central clearing—is heaped with food; stacks of yams, bananas, coconuts, huge sheaves of sugar-cane.

A platform, rigged up at one end of the clearing, is positively buried in food. Each guest is called up to the platform by name to receive a present—usually yams and pork. And here, later, the young girls dance and sway.

Each village celebration consists of a feast that lasts two days. During that time, meat, vegetables, fruits are cooked and served without a pause. Guests are pressed to eat and go on eating till they can eat no more.

A dance takes place. The dancers are pelted with fruits and flowers. These are trodden under foot and add to their exotic scents to an atmosphere already pungently flavored.

The women of the village wear necklaces of betel-nut and edible berries and little else. Round each waist is a girdle of raw meat.

The times comes when all the unattached girls of the village mount the platform lightly clad. They are decorated with flowers and brightly colored leaves. They start to dance.

They sway rhythmically, their grass skirts swinging. One by one they stop, run laughing down from the platform—one by one claimed as the mate of visiting unattached men.

The amount of food consumed at one of these village festivals is so enormous that the hosts often find themselves entirely without supplies for the rest of the year.

Then they rely on the hospitality of those who have been their guests —until the next harvest.

Questions and Answers

What is Southern Spoon bread and does the name have any significance in describing the bread?

Spoon bread is so soft it must be spooned from the dish in which it has been baked. It is served with butter for breakfast or luncheon. With gravy, it is served like a vegetable. Here is a recipe if you would like to try it. Pour 1 cup boiling water over 3 tablespoons of white corn meal; mix. Add 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1 tablespoon sugar. Cook in a double boiler until thick. Stir in 1 cup cooked rice and 1 tablespoon butter. Add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs and 1 cup of milk. Fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into greased baking dish. Place in a pan containing a little hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 35 or 40 minutes.

What kind of pie pans do you recommend? I have heard that the kind of pan used affects the degree of browning obtained.

The pan affects the browning results in that some pans will retain heat and produce a greater brown on the crust than others. The enamel or old-fashioned granite pans are excellent for giving even brown. Glass baking pans produce good browning also, but pans of light color or light weight tend to reflect the heat and do not brown the crust as much.

At what temperature should whole potatoes be baked?

Most cooking charts suggest a temperature of 450 degrees and allow a baking time of 40 to 60 minutes, depending on the size of the potatoes. To prevent the skins from becoming tough, the potatoes should be brushed with fat and a nice glossy finish is obtained for serving them most appetizingly.

Tips On How It's Done

To beat—Use an up and down motion which will enclose air in food and make it light.

To oil pans—Use a pastry brush, and brush the sides and bottom of the pan with oil or other fat.

To mince onions—Cut an end slice from a peeled onion. Cut exposed surface into thin squares to any desired depth. Then cut crosswise in thin slices.

To toast cocoanut—Spread shredded, fresh-keeping cocoanut in a thin layer in a shallow pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until a golden brown. Stir shreds frequently to prevent scorching.

To dredge with flour—Sprinkle flour from a shaker top can, or from a sifter, over the food to be coated.

Canada's Babies Making More and More News

By International News Service

OTTAWA, Feb. 25—Babies! Babies! Babies! Italy's Mussolini, world champion baby-booster, ought to come to Canada and find out how it's done.

The latest baby record in this baby-conscious Dominion has been established in Winnipeg, where a taxi-driver was rushing Mrs. Nettie Ladan seven miles to a hospital. The baby was born in the tax within half a block of the hospital.

A few weeks ago, another baby was born on an Ontario train.

Canada's baby statistics are possibly unequalled by any other country in the world. The Dionne quintuplets are growing prettier and lustier every day. Some day they may "turn 'em away" 'with a vaudeville act.

Then there are the Mahoney quadruplets in New Brunswick, 11 years old and going strong.

In 1931 Canada claimed the first baby ever born in an airplane.

In 1834 a Mrs. Duvall put the finishing touches on another record. She had given birth to nine children in 18 months—quintuplets and quadruplets, a majority of whom survived.

And in Toronto, bets are being placed on the result of the "Baby Sweepstakes"—in which a number of mothers are competing for the $500,000 fortune left by Charles Vance Miller for the one who has the greatest number of babies during the 10 year period ending in October, 1936.

Reveals Important Source of Vital Nutrition Elements

Science Points Out Food Sources Other Than Those in Milk and Leafy Vegetables

IT is said that the ordinary diet of Americans is probably more deficient in Calcium than in any other chemical element. Medical authorities attribute deficiencies in growth and even many diseases to inadequacy in the supply of Calcium.

Another important cause of ill health is lack of a proper proportion of Phosphates in our diet. As is well known, in the process of milling flour a considerable portion of these health-giving Phosphates is eliminated, thus depriving the flour of much of its food value.

Nature requires the constant presence in the system of these two nutritive elements. They are contained in every tissue, nerve and muscle of the body. Science tells us that with an abundant supply of them in the system good health is promoted and, without that supply, disease is unavoidable.

The richest known sources for obtaining Calcium and Phosporous are milk and leafy vegetables. However, most people do not find it pleasant to drink a lot of milk. Likewise, there are many who do not care for a lot of vegetables.

Fortunately for them and for all others too, modern science has found that certain mineral salts (Calcium Phosphates) are also excellent sources of these vital elements. A highly recommended means for obtaining these minerals is through the use of baking powder made with calcium phosphate—all-phosphate baking powder.

Rumford is known the world over as the all-phosphate baking powder. It is a proven fact that there is as much food phosphate in one Rumford biscuit as there is in one and one-half lamb chops, one and three-quarters hen's eggs, two and one-half average servings of oatmeal and one and one-quarter glassfuls of milk.

In other words, when you bake with Rumford you get not only the advantages of perfect leavening action, but the addition of real nutritive elements to your diet as well. Where there are growing children in the family, this double advantage is especially important. It assures the healthy, normal growth of teeth and bones—the development of sound, sturdy bodies.

SALES TAX RULINGS

The sales tax section of the State Tax Commission has issued a number of rulings affecting various lines of business. Those of interest to Pickaway-co residents will be published in this column at intervals.

WAR VETERANS

War veterans who now have licenses issued under the provisions of Section 6351 of the General Code of Ohio are not exempt from the provisions of Section 10 of Amended House Bill No. 134 and must have a vendor's license for each county in which they make sales, providing they do not have a fixed place of business. Such war veterans must collect the tax on all sales made by them, as prescribed in Section 3 of Amended House Bill No.135.

CAFETERIAS

Cafeterias operated by boards of education for the purpose of lunches to pupils, teachers and employees of the school boards will not be required to procure a vendor's license for the operation of such cafeterias and will not be required to collect the tax on sales made through such cafeterias. This ruling has no application to cafeterias operated by parent teachers' associations or other groups, but applies only to cafeterias operated by school boards.

Cafeterias operated by parochial schools and other charitable institutions of learning, constitute "charitable institutions" and where the proceeds go entirely for philanthropic purposes the sales of meals therein are exempt and such institutions are not required to have vendor's licenses if such institutions are not engaged in making taxable sales.

SALES TO O. N. G.

Purchases by the Ohio National Guard through the use of funds provided for that organization in Section 5267 of the General Code of Ohio are not subject to the provisions of Section 2 of Amended House Bill No. 134, as such sales to the state of Ohio and are specifically exempt.

Sales of articles of tangible personal property to members of the Ohio National Guard, who use their own funds in making such purchases are subject tothe tax, regardless of the fact that the article so purchased remains the property of the Ohio National Guard, if and when the person leaves the organization.

Georgian Bay Islands

Georgian Bay, with its 30,000 islands, is that northern section of Lake Huron which is the waterway between Owen sound, Midland, Penetanguishene and Parry sound at the eastern extremity and the Soo at the western end, touching en route at many fishing resorts on the north shores of Georgian bay and Manitoulin island. The 60-mile stretch between Midland and Parry sound at the eastern end contains the archipelago of 10,000 islands situated in the "inside channel."

FDR's Friends Worried Over Fear He's Losing Popularity With People

WASHINGTON — One of the tragic things about every White House incumbent is a condition which best can be summarized in the advertising slogan: "Even his best friend won't tell him."

No one of a President's many friends and advisers seems ever to be quite willing to step up and tell him that he is slipping. This was particularly true of Hoover; and already it is beginning to be true of one of the shrewdest political observers ever to sit in the White House—Franklin Roosevelt.

Within the past month there has been a sickening feeling in the stomach-pits of a host of New Dealers which told them that with the country at large their leader had lost ground.

Despite the favorable gold decision from the Supreme Court, despite the definite business upturn, this feeling has increased.

There are several reasons for their perturbation, among the most important being:

1. The fear that the President, in trying to straddle both the Right and the Left, may fall in between.

2. Huey Long.

Progressive Disappointment

The Progressive group in Congress, once enthusiastic boosters for Roosevelt, now suffers varying degrees of disappointment, disillusionment and in some cases embitterment. They feel that their good friend has deserted them for the Tory Democrats and Big Business.

Tory Democratic leaders, on the other hand, gleefully announce that they have President under control, but in the same breath — when speaking privately — berate him more bitterly than any Republican. When Senators like Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Cotton Ed Smith of South Carolina, and Tydings of Maryland say about their titular leader in the White House resembles nothing more than what they used to say about Herbert Hoover.

They are chairmen of important committees, however, and Roosevelt, rightly or wrongly, feels he has to play ball with them, so chests swell with the pride of contheir quest.

Then too, a lot of Senators and Congressmen, both Republican and Democratic, always take delight in throwing rocks at the White House. Prior to this session they had not dared; Roosevelt was too popular.

But now, having the World Court example before them, plus constant undercover criticism from alleged Democratic leaders, a lot of the more timid souls have decided that it is safe to come out and take a few pot-shots themselves.

All of which increases the downhill momentum and is all gravy for the Republicans.

The sardonic thing is that the Democrats apparently don't realize that he who destroys his leader destroys himself. For the Democrats are doing most of the undercover knifing.

Huey Long Wedge

Then there is Huey Long.

The president, asked by a caller the other day, what he thought of Huey Long, raised both hands above his head in mock surrender.

Then in more serious tone he said:

It might be just enough of a wedge to swing the Republicans in again.

There are other lesser factors also somewhat worrying. One was the kindly comment which attended Herbert Hoover's visit to New York. His remark about there being "no bannisters to slide down" in the model house, made a hit with a lot of people.

Also there is the undeniable fact

OFFICER QUITS POLICE FORCE, OPPOSES CADY

Raymond Smith To Run For Democratic Nomination For Mayor

OFF FORCE TODAY

New Member Of Police Staff Not Named

Raymond H. Smith, who has served for 14 months as a night police officer, today made a two-fold announcement. First, he is resigning from the police department effective immediately; second, he is a candidate for mayor of the city.

Smith proferred his resignation to Police Chief W. H. Warner when the chief reported for work Monday morning. It thanked the chief, Mayor Cady and the other officials for their co-operation and asked that the resignation become effective at once.

Served On Desk

The officer was appointed to night duty when Mayor Cady took office Jan. 1, 1934. He had been working as a desk officer in the mayor's office prior to his appointment.

His announcement for mayor came as a surprise. Smith is a Democrat. Mayor Cady is the only other avowed candidate for the city office.

Mayor Cady and Safety Director L. T. Shaner had not announced at press-time who would be named to take Smith's place on the police force. They said they had several persons under consideration.

To Announce Chief

The mayor announced Monday that he would announce the identity of the new chief on Thursday with the successor to Chief W. H. Warner going to work on Friday, March 1. Chief Warner has been retired on $50 a month pension by the police pension board.

It is generally believed Officer William McCrady will be handed the chief's badge. The position pays the same as that of a patrolman.

SCHOOLS GET STATE HELP

$11,315 To Be Sent To Pickaway-co from Two Tax Collections

Pickaway-co schools will receive $11,315 this week as its share of a $2,494,805.50 emergency distribution from sales and liquid fuel taxes. Each school district in the state will receive part of the distribution based on average daily attendance.

An acute financial situation exists in many of the state districts.

Checks will be in the hands of school districts by the middle of the week and will represent $2 for each pupil.

Normally the first disbursement of sales tax revenue to the schools would not have been made until March 30 but the dire need in many districts prompted the auditor to advance the date. Another distribution is scheduled for March 30.

VET OFFERS TO REPLACE BRUNO

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 25—Stanley Prystup, World War veteran and CWA worker, has offered to take Bruno Richard Hauptmann's place in the electric chair if the convicted kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby will pay $6,000 to Prystup's family.

Prystup, who lives in Brooklyn, wrote a letter to Governor Harold G. Hoffman, of New Jersey, putting forward his idea.

The would-be substitute declared in his letter that he wished to provide the money for his 14-year-old son and 12-year-old daughter. He said he found it very difficult to take care of his family on $12 a week relief allowance.

Governor Hoffman turned down the offer.

He explained:

"The procedure you mention is not permissible under the laws of the state of New Jersey."

CROP CONTROL FIGHT STARTS; HEARINGS SET

Five Amendments To Result In Interesting, Important Hearings

PROCESSORS ACTIVE

Much Power Would Be Held As Reserve

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Lines were drawn today for a battle over the AAA amendments which would give the federal government power to enforce "economic planning" for all agriculture.

Hearings will be opened tomorrow by a house committee while a senate committee will begin hearings on Thursday. Representatives of 26 major associations of processors are prepared to fight the amendments. Against the processors are spokesmen for leading farm organizations and the influence of the administration. A third element was represented by the National Farmers Union and similar organizations. Their leaders assail Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as a "czar" but berate the processors who handle farm products. The AAA amendments would:

Provide Licenses

Give the AAA power to license processors, such as meat packers, milk dealers, millers.

Through licensing, regulate quotas of farm products flowing to markets and to punish farmers failing to agree to cut production.

Eliminate unfair practices and fix the farmer's share.

Permit establishment of the "ever normal" granary idea, with the government loaning on crops in plentiful years and holding products for lean years.

To regulate marketing, the AAA

WARDEN PLANS OUSTER FIGHT

To Go To Highest Court, He Says; Suspension Illegal, Thomas Contends

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25— A promise of "sensational disclosures" was made by Preston E. Thomas, ousted Ohio penitentiary warden, here today as he drafted an appeal against his removal for filing early this afternoon with the state civil service commission.

Although Thomas has ten days in which to file his appeal, he asserted he would carry the fight at once and declared he would battle his case "through the supreme court if necessary."

One of the grounds on which he will base his fight, Thomas told International News Service, will be that his suspension last January 26 was illegal.

"I was suspended by an order of Mrs. Margaret Allman as welfare director under Governor Davey before she was legally serving as state welfare director," Thomas declared. He added the charge that his removal was ordered "to clear the way for appointment of the governor's hand-picked man"—J. C. Woodard, assistant warden who was named acting warden when Thomas was placed under suspension.

Blanket denial of the charges contained in the removal order was made by Thomas. Seventeen specific charges were listed in the order, covering allegations of "inefficiency, immoral conduct, neglect of duty, malfeasance, nonfeasance," etc.

BUREAU STARTS CAMPAIGN TO IMPROVE RURAL FINANCE

Realizing the deplorable financial situation Ohio agriculture is in today, officials of the Ohio Farm Bureau have drawn up a comprehensive program of mutual financing, and have outlined a three months' educational program to begin March 1.

To carry on this refinancing program, the farm bureau has set up seven principal goals toward which it will work. In each instance the economic maxim, "whoever finances a business controls it," will be adopted. "There lies the secret of recovery for Ohio agriculture," Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, declared in announcing the campaign. "Let the farmers of this state finance their own industry, and they will gain the control by which to improve their position in the social, political and economic life of the nation."

In each of the state's 88 counties, and in every one of the farm bureau's' 22 districts, meeting will be held to acquaint Ohio farmers with the principles of the program. Farm bureau leaders and other men who are acquainted with the problems of agriculture and rural finance will address these gatherings.

One of the chief purposes of the campaign will be the organization of 10 county credit unions in Ohio. The farm bureau has formed three so far, and is deeply interested in developing the idea further. Only seven farmers are required by law to organize, buy seven shares of stock at either 5 or 10 dollars, and apply for a charter. Anyone is eligible for membership by paying an entrance fee of not more than 25 cents and subscribing for a share of stock.

Other plans include promoting the use of the Farm Bureau Agricultural Credit Corporation, which has at hand funds to take care of the credit needs of farmers for operating expenses campaigning for the financing of county cooperative associations; the installation of ten additional bulk oil plants in the state; a continuous promotion of cooperative activities; and the organization and financing of a farm bureau creamery association and a farm bureau poultry and egg association.

Much of this program will involve a consideration of the credit problem facing the Ohio farmer.

The film star, inset, plans to take her castle, which is filled with mechanical wonders in miniature, on a world tour. This is the living room, illuminated with the smallest lectric lights ever made.

asks power to levy a processing tax on livestock but pay benefits to farmers producing feed or in similar cases. Some livestock producers are fighting this proposal.

The hearings are expected to bring an airing of the "purging" of the AAA by Administrator Chester C. Davis in which a half-dozen "Liberals" were ousted from important posts. Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford Guy Tugwell, accompanied by Victor Christgau, ousted assistant AAA administrator and other victims of the AAA reorganization, conferred with members of congress Saturday.

Used As Emergency

While the AAA amendments would give vast power over agriculture, Davis stated much of it would be reserve power, to be used only in emergencies.

Crocheted and Off the Face is a Spring Favorite

PATTERN 5317

Be ready to greet that first robin in a properly springlike bonnet. And if you want to make a smart impression, choose this off-the-face crocheted hat, designed by Alice Brooks. Fashion has decreed brims so this one is crocheted in a ribbed effect that makes it look like straw. The crown has a slight tendency to become a bonnet—just enough to be alluring. Guimpe, that is so popular now for hats and purses, is the thing to use, for it has just the right stiffness to make this brim turn up real perky. You can trim it with two pompoms in contrasting colors or some other ornament. The envelope purse is enhanced by the crocheted rope that trims it. In detail, it matches the hat, the body of it being ribbed while the narrow flap is plain.

In pattern 5317 you will find complete instructions for making the set shown; an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main St., Circleville, O.

TIME TO CLEAN UP

THERE is no "sure sign" of spring, but spring should be a "sure sign" of the arrival of that time for the community to clean up. There is no superstition or prophesying about this clean-up sign.

When warm weather has come to stay (until cold weather comes in autumn) every owner of property and every tenant should instinctively feel it his duty to remove the evidences of winter's ravages and to aid and augment nature in her work of re-beautification.

Every spring clean-up program should include disposal of winter's accumulation of litter and decayed vegetation, repairing and repainting buildings, and landscape gardening. Landscape gardening is no longer associated with large estates alone but should be included in the beautification of every home.

Cleanliness about the person or the home costs nothing. A community clean-up need involve no expense, except a moderate amount of labor on the part of the householders. If there ever were excuses for uncleanliness, they were removed long ago.

What is the compensation of a community-side clean-up campaign? It improves the general health of the community by removing deposits that are breeding places of disease germs and disease-carrying insects. A clean town is a better place in which to live than one that is unsanitary and unsightly. And the best community advertising is the appearance of being "cleaned up and painted up."

Circleville attracts much favorable comment on account of its apparent cleanliness at all seasons of the year, so let's get an early start this season and give the old town a thorough house-cleaning.

RELIEF AND AUTOS

TWO RECENT reports, both dealing with important national issues, present a strangely paradoxical situation. One concerns record relief expenditures while the other offers the news that the automobile manufacturers, seeing signs of upturn everywhere, rather confidently expect to turn out 1,000,000 or more cars in the first three months of 1935.

Seemingly, these two reports are irreconcilable: It is not impossible, however, to explain them with at least a reasonable debt to satisfaction. Part of the responsibility for failure to reduce the relief burden borne by the federal government and the states must be assumed by those who administer the relief system and part by the beneficiaries of its functioning.

It is natural for men to find pride in administering large projects. Officials of government are striving constantly to enlarge their operations in order that they may increase their prestige and their powers. But such ambitions are dangerous in the relief field.

They are dangerous to the recipients of relief because continued ease in obtaining the means of sustenance is often harmful to morale, destroying initiative and ambition. They are dangerous also to the taxpayers, who may be reduced to impoverishment by the constant drain on their diminishing resources.

Consequently, public interest is to be served by cutting down relief as fast as possible and by the ruthless elimination of the chronic idlers from the relief lists. Devastating effects can be produced upon society by overdoing relief and the danger is one to be guarded against.

TEMPTING THIEVES

IT is rather difficult to work up a great deal of sympathy for the New York society woman who was robbed a few days ago of jewels valued at $200,000. The victim of the robbery, according to news reports, found a great deal of personal pride and satisfaction in her possession of jewelry valued at $350,000.

In fact, she wore a great part of her collection to the races in Miami and was the sparkling cynosure of all eyes, including those of many artful thieves who found inspiration in the gaudy display. Some of these dishonest chaps followed the woman to her hotel and robbed her room of a part of her jewelry, including pearl necklaces, rings, bracelets, etc. Although the police of the country are searching for the thieves, no trace of them or the stolen jewels has been found.

Responsibility for this robbery, it seems, rests primarily with the victim herself. She chose to make a vulgar display of her wealth in a race-track crowd. And she succeeded so well as to place temptation in the path of men who were weak and who also possessed definite talents as thieves.

Little Sister

by MARGARET WIDDEMER

CHAPTER 51

LEILA LOOKED at it. The sound lay gray-blue and gleaming in the moonlight, with little boats and larger boats of the nearest boat club rocking at anchor. A big autumn moon was pushing really up the sky. The four acres of Fernwood waters lay orderly and pretty beyond them; the quaint colored houses, a full dozen by now, ready for occupancy with their green lawns, their landscaping, their lighted porches, had an air of completeness and security and youthful prosperity. The big community house was all alight, and the parking space to one side of it was nearly full of cars already. The bathing beach had been completely reclaimed, and the cabanas were complete, too—this was a late autumn, there would be at least a fortnight, perhaps a month, more of bathing—red and yellow awnings, big bright umbrellas, had been set up or left up this night to show how the shore would be by day. She looked back to the dozen defiantly bright houses again, and saw beyond them again excavations, cellars, half-built houses. The place would be all done before frost came . . . and before spring came it would be desolate.

"Good-looking, eh?" said Orton again.

"Good-looking as a mirage," she said.

"We're at the speakers' table," said Orton complacently, as he led her in. He rarely listened when Leila used words he didn't know.

"What's this? The phalanstery dining room?" she asked, as he led her into a long bright room dotted with the conventional little flower-trimmed tables, with the usual amount of darting waiters, up to the customary long white table on an elevation, with the usual men and women in evening dress eating the usual canned crab hors d'œuvre along it.

"Phal—what? Say, Leila, don't go highbrow on me. Got a speech to make, strain enough on the old intellect. It's the casino's ballroom. The regular dining room wouldn't take all the tables. The best people from all the Fernwoods are here. Civic occasion and all that."

"Addison," said Leila, a little dazed, "called it the community house."

"Well, that's all right, funny chap, has funny names for things," said Orton. "It's his Fernwood Waters Casino just the same. And a very good one. Nice cabanas, good pool—I forgot you were funny about [illegible] shows what [illegible] ness sense can do for lots [illegible] people and [illegible] Dell is good. I [illegible] belongs to [illegible] fraternity. Also, of course, [illegible] mater's one of our big minds, if I do say it."

Leila silently attacked her cantaloupe crab. There was a very [illegible] chestra, the one from the Manor Country club, indeed, playing [illegible] from "Roberta" and "All the Kings Horses." Above it, the satisfied chatter of an eating populace rose. She scanned them. Yes, most of the Manor people. A lot of the Fernwood Gardens people. All the younger ones she did not know must be the new Fernwood Waters purchasers. She looked along the table at which she was sitting; there in a tailcoat was Red DeFries, beside him the honey-blonde, comely, tall girl in green, his Marge. There were Jerry and Mary Martin, Mary in a maroon velvet with no back and no shoulders and long skin-tight sleeves, possessively gay with Jerry. There were the older Martins, of course, be paunchy, capable, aggressive-jawed, she glitter-haired, small and dethin, a little more lined, more than a little rouged and transformationed, a memento mori, for anybody with eyes, of what Mary would be in twenty years. There were Mayor Gregg, of the Fernwoods, and his wife, adequate, pleasant, tired. In the center of the table behind the fern piece sat, of course, Addison and Bet. Addison had made one last gesture for the people in the only business suit in the house. Bet hadn't. Bet, too, had gone reckless on the family charge account, and was expensive, if madonna-like, in blue and white with pearl trimmings. On Addison's farther side sat little Aunt Minnie in the black silk and old honiton Leila had helped her get into an hour before happy, flushed, and quivering. Beyond her was the president of the Manor Beach club and Mrs. Johnston-Hedges. On the far side of her was a vacant chair. There was no proletariat. None at all.

She turned to Red.

"Where is the proletariat this place is for?" she demanded of him point-blank.

"Good-evening. Oh, that's coming. Is this a festive occasion, I ask you? Marge and I are getting married almost the same time you are, though not so haughtily. Margie, old lamb, observe the only girl that never fell for our Jerry."

Leila and Marge were agreeable to [illegible] other; then somebody on the [illegible] side of Marge talked to her and Leila went back to silent consumption of the usual large tired [illegible]-chicken, the tepid beans and pink sherbet. She occasionally tried to talk to Orton as she wearily worried her lettuce leaf apart. But Orton was preoccupied. He was muttering over and over a humorous anecdote with which he was probably about to begin the speech he had been allotted. He was not a fluent public speaker.

Red DeFries, even, on her other side, was in the same condition. He was doing shorthand on the back of a pack of catalog cards. Occasionally he shuffled them desperately and rubbed out their numbers and renumbered them. Leila wished she had a speech to make herself, in order to have a reason for not paying attention.

The ice cream came and was eaten. The black coffee came and was drunk. Mrs. Johnston-Hedges arose, toastmistress as usual for all the civic doings for miles around the Fernwoods. After the usual humor and the usual compliments to her auditors, she began to admire Addison.

"He has," she finished archly in her deep voice, "in the words of Gilbert and Sullivan, 'pricked that annual blister,' our little neighborly argument between Fernwood Waters and Fernwood Manor about bathing beaches. It is now automatically at an end. For with a casino, cabanas, a pool, and a beach far superior to the parent Fernwood, open to all the daughter Fernwoods at a fee one-quarter of what poor old Fernwood Manor has to charge, Fernwood Waters, under Addison Huntingdon, has given to the younger and gayer Fernwoods a smarter, cheaper, better, more exclusive bathing beach. Armed with this assurance, I am in a position to tell you that the other Fernwoods have officially released their demand to share our poor old beach, before the annual village meeting. In fact, all that we hide-bound manorites need feel," she ended blithely, unheeding Addison's furious face and the efforts he was making to jump up (efforts Bet thwarted), "is that we may not be able to control our desire to ask for a little fun among these delightful cabanas also. But I assure Mr. Huntingdon that we won't, unless we are invited. Thanking him again, I will now turn the meeting over to our mayor, Mr. Gregg, who will introduce the next speaker."

AT THE CLIFTONA

Lyda Roberti is "disgoosted."

After Paramount made her learn to play the ukelele, in three weeks of intensive study for "College Rhythm," now playing at the Cliftona Theatre, the entire scene was deleted.

Instead, the Polish musical comedy sensation had to perform a dance with Joe Penner, radio comic, making his feature picture debut. So Miss Roberti had to begin over again, learning a trick step from LeRoy Prinz who is directing the chorus sequence.

"In the movies," says Miss Roberti with a trace of impatience, "you're always learning something new. Why once I even had to learn how to roller skate. By the time the picture was ready to shoot I was so sore from falling down that I had to take a week's rest."

"College Rhythm" also features Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie and Helen Mack in the amusing story of the college rivals who disagreed over one girl but agreed over two others. Along with two stirring football sequences and chorus scenes the film features a batch of brand new tunes by Gordon and Revel.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

A SMART SHIFT

WHEN partner has opened the auction and you have at once supported his call, if he makes a minimum raise it may be better to shift to no trumps than to stretch your values into a second assist which you lack. The following hand illustrates this fact. Game was impossible at hearts, but South's shift to 3-No Trumps, requesting the original bidder to go 4-Hearts, if he wished, yielded top score in the duplicate game where the hand was dealt.

	♠ J 10 9 3 ♥ J 9 5 3 2 ♦ A 8 ♣ A J
♠ A Q 8 6 4 ♥ Q 6 ♦ 4 3 2 ♣ K 9 8	W. N. E. S.	♠ 5 2 ♥ A 10 ♦ K J 9 7 6 ♣ 10 7 5 2
	♠ K 7 ♥ K 8 7 4 ♦ Q 10 5 ♣ Q 6 4 3

Bidding went: North, 1-Heart; South, 2-Hearts; North, 3-Hearts; South, 3-No Trumps, which held the contract.

The opening lead was the 6 of spades. Evidently East held no higher spade, and dummy's 9 held the trick, to start off the hearts. If West held a long suit headed by the A-Q, almost certainly he did not hold the Ace of hearts, or he would have shown his spades. I do not understand why he failed to show his suit, without the Ace of hearts. Had he done so it is very improbable that South ever would have ventured the no trump shift with the K-X of spades. The hand probably would have been played at 3-Hearts and failed to go game.

Dummy's lowest heart was led. When East played the 10 South had to guess that East did not have the A-Q left. Fortunately he guessed right. His K won the trick, and a low heart bumped together the Q and Ace, as South had hoped. East led back his last spade. The K won to West's Ace. That player returned his top diamond. Dummy played the 8 and East was in with his K. The 7 of diamonds (the original fourth-best card) lost to dummy's Ace. The J of spades was led. West's Q won the fourth defensive trick.

West led a club. The declarer could not afford to take any finesse at that stage, as the loss of a club trick would defeat the contract a trick. Dummy's Ace was played. The declarer entered with a heart. He led his good Q of diamonds. Dummy's J of clubs was discarded. Dummy won the next heart trick, then led off its last two cards—another good heart and the 10 of spades—just fulfilling its game contract.

Provided West shows his spades, perfect defense against hearts may defeat a contract of 3-Hearts. There will be 2 spade tricks taken at once. A return lead of that suit may be ruffed with the Ace, making West's Q of hearts good for another trick, with the K of diamonds ready to win a fifth trick.

Prevention, Early Treatment Head Off Hand Infections

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IF THERE is one thing which is evident from what we have been saying about infections of the hand this week, it must be that prevention is the important thing.

Dr. Clendening

The infections come from sticking our curious little hands around into hard and sharp and infected places, and we should be prepared to protect the hand with some sort of covering when we are doing that, or to treat any break in the skin of the hand with great respect, and also with some strong antiseptic solution, such as tincture of iodine.

In nothing is proper prevention and early treatment more important in heading off serious consequences than in the handling of a felon. The word "felon", the word "whitlow" and "paronychia" are often used interchangeably by surgeons. Felon and whitlow are practically the same thing. As felon is the commoner term, we will use it.

Felon means "one guilty of a felony; a wicked, cruel person." So it has been applied to cruel infection. It is an infection of the pulp of the terminal part of a finger, which eventually involves the bone. It may start innocently enough. A housewife, for instance, pricks her finger with a carpet tack; a little wound apparently heals, but after three days the end of the finger becomes red, the skin over the pulp becomes elevated, and there is a throbbing, wearing pain.

In the course of a few more days this finger end will become fluctuating, and pus will make its way to the surface, open spontaneously and drain, but the surgeon knows that it is often disastrous to wait until this happens spontaneously by Nature's methods, because in the course of the process the blood vessels to the bone become involved and obstructed and the bone dies, so that frequently the end of the finger has to be sacrificed. If drainage is made early, even sometimes before fluctuation occurs, this unhappy termination may frequently be prevented.

Paronychia is also an infection of the end of the finger, but it is closely associated with the nail. In fact, the word paronychia means "around the nail". It is the common nursery "run-around". A child has a hangnail, pulls it off until bleeding occurs, and then infection enters in.

Paronychia may become a felon in the sense that the infection invades the deeper structures and threatens the bone, but it is usually possible, by poulticing and drainage at the proper time, to evacuate the pus and leave a minor wound, which heals promptly without the serious consequences named.

Let me point out again, in closing, that the most important part of the handling of these cases is proper prevention and, failing that, early intelligent treatment.

UNSOUND MIND BLAMED FOR 'PLANE' SUICIDE OF GIRL

FATHER TELLS STORY TODAY

Jury Returns Finding; Envoy Questioned Concerning Aviators' Deaths

ROMFORD, Eng., Feb. 29—Jean and Elizabeth Du Bois, American girls who leaped from an airplane near here last Thursday, "committed suicide while of unsound mind," read the verdict of a coroner's jury here today. The verdict was a formal one, seldom departed from in cases of this kind in England.

ROMFORD, Eng., Feb. 25 — A few miles from the spot where his daughters, Jane, 29, and Elizabeth, 23, leaped to death from an airplane last week, oCert Du Bois, American consul general at Naples, took the witness stand in a cold gloomy police court here today, and sadly told a coroner's jury the story of the girls' last gay days in Italy.

Smuggled into the room through a side door, Du Bois took the oath and gave his testimony in a scarcely audible voice. It was evident that he had to fight to control his feelings.

To the questioning of Coroner C. E. Lewis, the father said that he last saw Jane and Elizabeth Feb. 15.

On that date, he testified, they "left for London to take an apartment to do some writing. They were to have been joined later by their mother and my sister from the United States.

Devoted to Each Other

"They generally travelled together. They were devoted to each other and always inseparable."

The coroner closely questioned the diplomat about the accident near Messina, Italy, in which Flying Officer John Alexander Forbes and Flight Lieut. Henry Longfield Beatty of the British Royal Air force were killer.

Grief over the death of the two dashing officers was said to have been the principal cause of the pretty young girls' suicide.

His daughters had not heard of the crash, which occurred Feb. 15, when they left Naples, Du Bois said.

"They had made the acquaintance of the officers, who were around the house a good bit for ten days preceding their departure," he said.

"Was there anything between one of these officers and your daughter?" the coroner inquired.

"The younger (Jane) was fond of Forbes in the way one might get fond of some one in ten days," replied Du Bois.

The kaiser and Roosevelt in Berlin

Theodore Roosevelt

Kaiser Wilhelm

WHEN THE United States entered the World war, no American was more eager to get into the thick of the fight than the late President Theodore Roosevelt who had led a crack cavalry troop in the Spanish-American war. Although he did not go, Roosevelt wanted to lead a force to France to battle the troops of Kaiser Wilhelm, with whom he had been on friendly terms not so many years before. Returning from his African hunt in 1910, Roosevelt made a really triumphal tour through Europe, lecturing at various cities. One of his stopping points was Berlin, where he visited the kaiser.

CHAMPIONS OUST ASHVILLE

NEW HOLLAND IN RARE FORM

Shifting Defense Stops Scoles; Monroe-Ashville Girls Vie For Title

WALNUT-ATLANTA MEET

Darby Given Scare But Defeats Tiny Monroe Five

New Holland again upset the dope bucket, Saturday evening, defeated the Ashville varsity and almost assured itself of a position in the finals of the county tournament to be played next Saturday night. New Holland will meet Scioto-twp in a quarter-final game Friday at 9 o'clock and should have little trouble winning, then tangles with the winner of the Jackson-Deercreek game in the semifinals Saturday at 3 o'clock.

Monroe-twp girls likewise came through Saturday night to defeat Walnut-twp after a foul-shooting contest which was decided upon as the result of a 15-15 deadlock which prevailed at the close of their game with Walnut-twp's girls.

It was decided to have the three offensive players of each team shoot one foul with those made being added to the score. It required three turns for each girl before Monroe won, the final score being 20-18. In the third effort all three Monroe girls completed their shots while Reber was the only Walnut-twp cager to sink her toss.

Faces Ashville Sextet

By virtue of the victory Monroe will meet the Asbville girls for the championship at 7 o'clock next Saturday. Ashville had little trouble beating Darby-twp girls, 20-11, although the Ashville margin was only three points at halftime.

The score of the New Holland-Ashville boys game, played before a packed auditorium at 7 o'clock, was 33-25 with big Everett Landman again providing the fireworks although it was the defense worked out by Coach Shadel Saunders to keep the ball away from Jim Scoles that decided the issue. Ashville on two different occasions had beaten New Holland in the regular season. Last year Ashville was the tournament favorite but lost to New Holland in the second round.

The defeat prevents Ashville from entering the district class B tourney.

The afternoon's play started with a hard-fighting Monroe team throwing a scare into the camp of the big Darby-twp team only to gradually fall behind losing by a 31-25 score. The size and shooting ability of Hicks and Bob Green, center and forward, spelled defeat for Monroe. Long was the star of the Monroe team.

Atlanta Runs Wild

The Atlanta, Perry-twp, team with Stevenson and Bentley running wild swamped a fighting but pitifully weak Washington team, 46-6. Stevenson and Bentley each tallied 18 points. The passing of Campbell made possible many of the points counted by these youths.

Walnut-twp, only hope of the eastern half of Pickaway-co in the boys' tourney, was forced in the first half but pulled away from Muhlenberg after the half-time intermission. The final score was 35-22 with Art Kaiser getting 15 points, 14 in the last half.

The Jackson-Saltcreek game played after the New Holland-Ashville joust was a thriller, 26-24, although poor basketball prevailed. Saltcreek took an early lead but lost it with Jackson pulling ahead at the end.

Dispute Over Score

There was a dispute concerning the correct score on this game, three of the books at the scorers' table showing it to be 26-24 for Jackson while three others were 26-24 for Saltcreek. The book of Official Scorer Earl Hickle which was in Jackson's favor will probably stand.

Kroger Babb was, as usual, on top the ball at all times as the referee.

Friday's games start at 7 o'clock with Darby and Pickaway meeting. At 8 Perry meets Walnut in what should be a mighty good game, then the New Holland and Scioto game comes at 9 with the Jackson team meeting Deercreek at 10.

There are no girls' games Friday evening.

The semifinals will begin at 2 o'clock Saturday.

OWENS TO SEEK BROAD LEAP MARK

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — Jesse Owens, the ebony express on Ohio State University's track team, today was being hailed as one of the United States' brightest track prospects for the 1936 olympic games after his stellar showing in the National A. A. U. games in New York Saturday night.

Owens retained his broad jump title by clearing 25 feet, nine inches. The world outdoor mark for the performance is 26 feet, 2 1-8 inches now held by Chuhei Nambu of Japan. Owens, it was believed, has a good chance to break that record if he gets plenty of outdoor work this year.

The negro star proved himself a versatile performer when he lowered the world's record for the 60-meter dash in the semi-finals to 6.6 seconds to defeat Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette. However, Owens got away to a poor start in the final heat and was beaten by Ben Johnson, Columbia negro, who equalled the 6.6 seconds record set earlier by Owens.

AZUCAR TO ENTER GRAND NATIONAL

SANTA ANITA TRACK, Arcadia, Cal., Feb. 25 — The surprise victory of Azucar in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap will not change the original plans of his owner, Fred M. Alger, Jr. of Detroit, he said today.

For the remainder of the year he will continue to train on race tracks here and at Bay Meadows, and then Azucar will be groomed for the grand national steeplechase at Aintree, England, next year, Alger said.

SANTA ANITA TRACK, Arcadia, Cal., Feb. 25— Twenty Grand, contender in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, today was on his way to Red Bank, N. J., accompanied by other members of the Greentree stable. With him were Early Call, Peradventure, Big Beau and Gillie.

CBL TO ENTER CAGE TOURNEY VOTE DECIDES

Statement Made As Officials of Loop Vote to Reverse Decision

ASK THREE CLASSES

Local Cagers Pleased With League's Ballot

Circleville and all other Central Buckeye league cage teams will participate in the central district basketball tournament, it was decided at a meeting Saturday in Columbus.

The league teams had previously voted to remain out of the tournament unless teams were reclassified according to size. As the league now stands Circleville, considered a class A school, must compete with such enormous schools as those of the ilk of Columbus Central.

Members of the varsity team were unanimous in their plea to Principal E. I. Gephart last week to cast his vote for participation.

Other class A teams which will enter are Delaware, Grandview, Bexley and Westerville with Marysville taking part in the class B.

The following statement was made by league officials at the close of the meeting:

"Due to the request of Central district athletic board that representatives of he Central Buckeye league enter the tournament league officers met at the Neil House Saturday and decided to take part again this year.

"The circuit postponed the former decision to withdraw from further competition in the district meet, until more equitable reclassification according to enrollment is adopted. This action was taken pending definite action on the reclassification by the state board.

"The Central Buckeye league plans to submit its suggestions for a questionnaire on reclassification, which could be presented in turn by the state board to all member schools of the Ohio High school Athletic association.

"This plan proposes that there be three classes. Class A would include schools having over 350 boys enrolled. Class B would include schools having enrollment of 150 to 350 boys and all of the present Class B schools not now playing in county tournaments. Class C would include all schools having an enrollment of less than 150 boys.

"Under this plan the present Class B would remain the same. The new group would be formed practically from a division of present Class A schools."

BUCKEYES MEET MICHIGAN TEAM

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — After helping to drop Purdue's Boilermakers into second place in the Big Ten basketball race by a one-point victory Saturday night, Ohio State's cage squad prepared to wind up its season with Michigan next Saturday night.

With the Wolverine tilt, Capt. Bill Beitner of Dover will play his last collegiate basketball game for the Bucks. Coach Harold G. Olsen also will lose Jack Wilson and Chester Wendt by graduation.

However, he still will have Tippy Dye of Pomeroy, Earl Thomas of Ashland and Warren Whitlinger around whom to build a team next year.

The Michigan game will be an anti-climax for the Bucks, particularly after they beat Purdue, 40 to 39 Saturday night. Not only did it avenge an early season defeat but it helped drop Purdue into second place as Wisconsin beat Michigan to assume the lead.

Purdue, however, can go back into a tie for first place with the Badgers if they beat Indiana tonight.

ASHVILLE GRANTED LEAGUE FRANCHISE

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — One member still was needed today to round out the eight-team central Ohio baseball league.

Seven clubs were awarded franchises at a meeting here yesterday. The Columbus Police nine was the only new member and the others were Ashville, Gahanna, Grove City, New Albany, Obetz and Price, the latter the 1934 pennant winner.

Schedules will be arranged at a meeting here March 12 and the season will open April 21.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Some Gleanings

High point men in the first round of games in the county tournament were Stevenson and Bentley of Atlanta each with 18. Eight athletes were thrown out of games Saturday on personal fouls; they were Liff of Darby, E. Walters of Monroe, Bausum of Walnut, C. Dean of Muhlenberg, M'Cune of New Holland, Thompson and Speakman of Jackson and K. Near of Darby, the latter being the only girl. Fewest fouls were called in the Washington-Perry game, 13 on the former, five on the latter. No team went through its first round game without a substitute, Perry used only one, Lamb for Benley; Muhlenberg used one, Huffer for Hill; New Holland one. After for McCune and Saltcreek used one, George for C. Dean * * * Dr. A. D. Blackburn, tournament manager, did not see any game remaining at the ticket window all the time---In all of New Holland's games this year he has seen only a few periods * * *

Drove Five Hours

Kroger Babb, tourney official, drove to Circleville from Bellefontaine Friday night through a sleet storm leaving the Logan-co city at 11 p. m. and arriving here at 4:10 a. m.—Babb hasn't seen his wife and kiddy since last Tuesday having officiated every night during the past week * * * He says Greenfield is going to be tough to defeat in a tournament * * *

Cornelius Did Stuff

'Tis a tough handicap to have a cognomen in front of his name like Helfrich of the New Holland team has but he surely played basketball Saturday night in the tourney upset—Cornelius, it is, but his pals make it easier by calling him Neely or just plain Neel—He scored 10 points, four the first half and six the second, to really win the ball game for New Holland—He provided trouble from an unexpected source * * *

Three Fouls Costly

The fact that Jim Scoles, Ashville's center, was permitted to play big Ev Landman even after he had committed his third foul appeared foolish to us—It stood to reason that Scoles was not going to touch Landman and as a result the big fellow caged three easy buckets after that—Steinbrook, Young or Millar were all available and either would have done better than Scoles did with the threat of a trip to the bench facing him—Baker, Ashville guard, had a decided off-night * * * Ashville fans don't care so much for the tourney but the fact that they do not get to see their team in the district tournament at Westerville is what hurts—Ashville has made splendid showings against Columbus Central, North, West and Aquinas this year in practice tilts and the team's followers believe the quintet had possibilities in the district meet * * *

Bartons' Sea Cager

The little boy, who played on the basketball court during intermissions, is a son of Robert L. Barton, Monroe-twp superintendent—The kidder wore a jersey with the Monroe 'M' on its front

KITCHEN SUFFERS BADLY CUT EYE

Ray Kitchen, Stoutsville boy's coach, formerly of Atlanta, who has been very ill with a severe cold remained away from the Fairfield-co tournament until his team had almost completed its losing game with Liberty Union Saturday afternoon. On arriving at the tourney he crowded up to get information on time left to play and was accidentally bumped by a spectator in such a manner as to break his glasses dangerously cutting his left eye.

Severe pain of the injury caused his to lapse into unconsciousness in the lockerroom where a Lancaster doctor was called to treat him.

EMERY CLUB FIVE TO FACE SOLDIERS

The Emery club will play the A. & S. detachment of Fort Hays, Columbus, at 7:30 p. m. Monday at St. Philip's parish house.

The club team has been playing good basketball and will give the soldiers a good game.

Manager-Coach Cuz Dumm expects to use Leasure, Steele, Friece, Porter and Frenk in his starting lineup.

In The Dark

None of these things are so serious that they could not be stemmed if taken in hand early enough. But, as with every President, no ones likes to be a harbinger of bad news, and so Roosevelt is not getting the entire picture.

There was a day when he would have sensed this unfavorable immediately. During the campaign, for instance, he had his ear to the ground every minute. Moley, Louey Howe, and Roosevelt himself were getting hourly bulletins from every part of the country.

But now Moley has become a worshipper at the shrine of Big Business, Louey Howe is sick and more isolated than Roosevelt. And the President, himself, necessarily is engrossed in the terrific strain and routine of office.

All he hears is the raucous voice of that machine politician, James Aloysious Farley, who thinks that to win in 1936 he only has to appoint an Irish Democrat as postmaster and, another as county chairman throughout the United States of America, and who already is bragging:

"1936? Aw, it's already in the bag!"

Chosen by Duquesne

Christy Flanagan

Elmer Layden's successful regime at Duquesne university had much to do with selection of Christy Flanagan, another former Notre Dame football player, as head coach. Flanagan has just been signed by the Pittsburgh school.

OHIO CHARITY CHIEF FIRED BY DIRECTOR

Miss Atkinson "Notified" by Mrs. Allman That Position Is Ended

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — While battle lines were drawn for the fight over the post of warden of Ohio penitentiary, it was disclosed here today that Miss Mary Irene Atkinson, superintendent of charities of the Ohio Public welfare department, has been summarily dismissed.

Confirmation of her dismissal was made by Miss Atkinson in a statement in which she declared that last Thursday she was notified verbally by Mrs. Margaret Allman, state welfare director, "that my successor would take over my office March 1."

"I was not asked to resign," Miss Atkinson's statement said.

Has Parallel Case

Dismissal of Miss Atkinson, who is a cousin of H. S. Atkinson, former chairman of the Ohio State university board of trustees and who is a Democrat, was regarded here as a parallel to the discharge recently of Miss Louise Stitt, Ohio State university economics instructor, as head of the minimum wage division.

Miss Stitt was removed to make an opening for a "vote-getter," it was brought out.

Disclosure of Miss Atkinson's dismissal came as Preston E. Thomas removed as warden of Ohio penitentiary, began mapping plans to fight his ouster. Warden Thomas has declared he will carry his battle to retain the wardenship through the civil service commission and to the supreme court if necessary.

Formal removal charges against Thomas were announced Saturday night. They contained seventeen specific charges. Thomas has 10 days in which to appeal to the civil service commission.

Meaning of "Junket"

The word junket as often applied to congress was originally applied to a banquet, or a picnic or excursion with feasting but it has come to mean a trip at public expense by government officials to some distant post, territory or public works for the purpose, they claim, of investigating conduct or for inspection. Congressmen, especially, have been noted in the past for their junkets to distant regions flying the American flag.—Pathfinder Magazine

HUNT HEX HEALERS AS BOY SLASHES BABY BROTHER

Nurse Elsie Talley and Infant James Fritz

John Fritz, Jr. Mrs. Fritz Floyd Fritz

Campaign against ancient superstition in Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, followed slashing of eight-month-old James Fritz at his home near Williamsport, by his five-year-old brother, John Jr., after John was reported "cured" of a visitation of evil spirits by a so-called faith healer. It was estimated 30 of the "pow-wow doctors" would be arrested. Slashing of the baby is said to have followed a visit to the Fritz home by a hex doctor who said a few words over John, and then advised that the boy be left alone in a room with the baby. John is said to have inflicted several deep cuts on his baby brother's head after the "cure". Nurse Elsie Talley is shown holding the baby in a Williamsport hospital, and at right are Mrs. Fritz, the mother, and two of her children.

SALES TAX RULINGS

The sales tax section of the State Tax Commission has issued a number of rulings affecting various lines of business. Those of interest to Pickaway-co residents will be published in this column at intervals.

FILING BILLS OF SALE

The vendor's portion of the prepaid tax receipts must be firmly attached to an automobile bill of sale which the county clerks accepts for filing before such bill of sale will be accepted for recording.

The consumers' portion of the prepaid tax receipts must be firmly affixed to the bill of sale which is to be retained by the purchaser of an automobile before the county clerks will accept the bill of sale for recording.

Bills of sales which are not accompanied by the vendors' and consumers' portion of the prepaid tax receipts as outlined above will not be accepted by clerks of courts.

MORTICIANS

Morticians must collect the tax on the sales of items of tangible personal property furnished by them in connection with their services. The tax does not apply where the sales are made to the state or any of its political subdivisions.

Where it is the practice of the mortician to charge a lump sum for the funeral, such sum including the charge for the casket complete, embalming and care of the remains, hearse, limousine, use of funeral chapel and establishment, and professional services, the tax is computed on the basis of the entire charge.

If, however, the items of personal property furnished are segregated in the bills to the consumer, the tax will be computed on the price charged for the tangible personal property furnished.

TWO PAY FINES

Vendon Williams, 22, and Frank Boyd, 32, both of Orient, paid fines of $5 and costs when they were taken before Squire H. O. Eveland, Monday, on charges of intoxication. They were arrested by Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Aulton Cain, New Holland, was released from the county jail Monday when his wife withdrew charges of assault and battery. He had been bound to the grand jury by Squire H. O. Eveland.

"Little Minds With Big Voices"

It is probable that if science could devise an apparatus capable of weighing and measuring the responsibility for all the things that go wrong in the world, it would be found that most of mankind's errors in running its affairs arise from oratory. Through the ages, glib tongues have wagged, and the world has wagged with them. Little minds with big voices have an entirely disproportionate influence upon human affairs. Silver tongues carry weak men into power, put bad laws on our statute books and trick people into permitting enactment of worse ones when they fail. A nation of mutes probably would become the most wisely governed people of all time. — Northwestern Miller.

Foreign Postage

To send a letter to any part of the world, it is necessary merely to affix a 5-cent stamp or its equivalent, says G. R. Turner, in the Kansas City Times. The only exception is the 3-cent rate between the United States and Canada and the rate of like amount between Spain and the Americas. The revenue from the postage goes always to the country in which the stamp is purchased, for every nation delivers free and uncounted all mail delivered within its own borders. One country charges another only when it transports for that country mail addressed to a third country.

Legend

An old Indian legend: When plants and animals were created they were told to stay awake and watch for seven nights. The first night nearly all the animals kept awake. The next night several dropped to sleep. The third night still more went to sleep. At last on the seventh night, only the owl, the panther and a very few of the animals still were awake. Therefore these have the power to see and move about in the dark. Even the trees went to sleep. Only the cedars, the pine the spruce, the holly and laurel were awake all seven nights. For that reason they are always green.—The Earth.

"Growing Pains"

Those vague, ambiguous pains in children which are popularly known as "growing pains" are entirely misnamed. Such pains are probably associated with rheumatism, according to Jacobi, who first clearly saw the clinical relationship between growing pains and articular rheumatism and even endocarditis. The medical scientist noted that uncomplicated muscular rheumatism is rare in young children, and at that time he wrote: "'Growing pains' are not infrequently inflammatory rheumatism, and endocarditis of later years may be traced back to the growing pains which are but dimly remembered." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Gates of Sorrow"

Babel Mandeb, a body of water with a name meaning "gates of sorrow," is a strait connecting the Indian ocean and the Red sea. It separates the southeastern part of Arabia from the continent of Africa. Near the African coast are the volcanic islets, Eight Brothers. The strait offers so many dangers to small vessels that the name meaning gates of sorrow was given to it.

ADVICE TO WOMEN

ALL women at some period of their lives need a strengthening tonic like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The young woman who suffers from monthly pains, the expectant mother who has nausea and other disagreeable symptoms, or the middle-aged woman who experiences "heat flashes" will find this "Prescription" a dependable tonic. IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ¾ of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. The tag, at right, identifies the I. E. S. study lamp. See our large display of approved floor lamps and table lamps. Ask about the new two filament bulb and glass bowl reflector.

I. E. S. Lamp Is Scientifically Correct

HERE is the new I. E. S. study lamp—a lamp combining attractiveness with lighting efficiency.

It is high enough to spread the light over a wide surface. It has a specially treated shade which reflects rather than absorbs the rays. It is equipped with an opal glass diffuser, that allows some light to strike the printed page directly while the rest is thrown against the ceiling . . . thus eliminating harmful contrasts.

Unlike the old, inefficient type of table or floor lamp, this new approved lamp gives a soft uniform glow—ideal for reading, study, or other close work.

Every I. E. S. study lamp is built to specifications prepared by the Illuminating Engineering Society and is endorsed by the Electrical Testing Laboratories.

FOURTH ANNUAL COOKING SCHOOL TO OPEN TUESDAY

1:30 IS HOUR SET TO BEGIN

Mrs. Thurn Again in Charge of School; Pencils, Notebooks Essential to Patrons

Good cookery has made more happy homes than Paris gowns. Well planned meals of healthful, nourishing foods have saved more lives than rest cures and nosptials. Succulent dishes make brighter eyes and prettier complexions than a shelf full of cosmetics; these are some of the maxims of Mrs. George O. Thurn who begins her exciting big Cooking School tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock in Memorial hall.

The final preparations for The Herald Cooking School, are under way. Foods in boxes and crates have been delivered to the kitchen. The dairy products, fruits, loaves of bread and bags of flour and other good things are arriving, refrigerator and range are connected and everything is in readiness for the opening at 1:30 o'clock.

This final preparation is in the capable hands of Mrs. Thurn. She has conducted Cooking Schools before thousands of American women; she has been trained in sound Home Economics principles and has a long practical experience as homemaker and housekeeper; she has traveled widely to inform herself of new developments in the laboratories of the great American manufacturers and in the laboratories of schools and colleges where new developments and discoveries add new interest to homemaking, every year. Mrs. Thurn brings the results of her school, traveling and long experience as a lecturer to the women of Circleville tomorrow. She speaks with enthusiasm for she believes in the vital importance of good cookery. She has charm and poise as well, which endear her to the thousands of women who have heard her in other cities. Every recipe, in the many good ones she will prepare and give out tomorrow and on the following days of the School, is a product of her fine experience as a housekeeper and home economics specialist.

Her stage kitchen represents the newest wares of the merchants of Circleville, for the modern labor-saving and time-saving equipment demanded by this homemaking authority is to be found right here in the shops of our city.

With all of this fine equipment and abundance of groceries, Mrs. Thurn's message is to be directed to the housekeeper who has but little to spend as well as to women who can afford to be a little lavish in their kitchens. Economy, low cost budgets, simple cookery have an important place in each of her programs. For the new housekeeper, the bride, she will point out new ideas for labor-saving and time-saving, suggestions for planning menus, for planning parties and entertaining.

For the long experienced housewife, as well as brides, Mrs. Thurn has some delicious and unusual recipes printed and ready to distribute at every session to all who attend, in addition to the new dishes she will describe and prepare on the platform. The recipes are free of course and many of the prepared dishes will also be given away at each session.

Bring pencils and notebooks, to jot down ideas and recipes. Come early to get the best seats; plan to come every day, for not only are the gifts such as filled market baskets and cooked dishes given away each day but those who have been faithfully attending each session, have greater chances of carrying home the big gifts which the local merchants are contributing to the School.

THE ACCOUNTANT

The headmistress was questioning the children about their ages.

"How old were you last birthday?" she asked one small pupil.

"Seven, ma'am," said the boy.

"And how old will you be next birthday?"

"Nine, ma'am."

"Nonsense!" said the teacher, "If you were seven last birthday, how can you be nine next?"

"Well," was the reply, "you see, ma'am. I'm eight today!"

DRESSED FOR THE EASTER PARADE

This is an excellent example of the type of wear that will be walking down Park avenue in the Easter parade. It consists of a tannish-gray shirtmaker dress topped by a plaid coat of the same material but bright blue and white. The collar and cuffs are snow fox. Five Minutes Important In Brewing of Fine Tea

That great enjoyment may come from little things is well illustrated by the fact that the investment of a mere five minutes may produce perfect tea, it was pointed out by Mrs. George Thurn, Home Economics expert, who is lecturing at the Memorial Hall this week.

And yet, strange as it may seem, many modern housewives—often, even knowing better—attempt to cheat a little on the time, fooling themselves that the beverage so made is good enough, Mrs. Thurn deplored, adding that "good enough" is only a sad, weak apology for "good."

"More than three centuries ago Shakespeare wrote 'As he brews so shall he drink.' I don't whether that immortal poet had tea in mind when he wrote this," the speaker continued. "But it doesn't call for poetic license to say it's perfectly applicable to the subject of tea preparation. For there is as much difference between improperly and properly brewed tea as there is between a perfect drink made to inspire and enjoy, and an indifferent one which is gulped down and mercifully forgotten."

After scoring those who would deny their families and friends the necessary five minutes it takes to prepare tea that is a delight and beneficial, the lecturer pointed out that black teas are preferable to pale, weaker teas whose leaves have not been properly treated and fermented after picking. These black teas come principally from India, and some from Ceylon and Java.

The lecturer explained that proper preparation is not so much an art as it is a necessity, if the richness and fragrance of Nature's oils and flavor are to be completely drawn from the right tea leaf.

She then demonstrated by brewing tea on the platform before a large audience, and explained that all the facts about the choice and preparation of palatable and beneficial tea were revealed at a meeting of home economics experts recently when L. Beling, Director of the India Tea Bureau in the United States, discussed the subject.

The following simple brewing formula is recommended by experts, said the lecturer:

"The water must be a lively and actually boiling. Merely steaming water is not enough. When the water is 'mad boiling hot' the teapot should be rinsed thoroughly with it so that the pot is completely heated or steamed. Then pour onto the leaves exactly the quantity of water for the number of cups to be served. Last, and most important, let the tea brew for five minutes. At the end of that time the tea brew can be poured into another pot for serving—the idea being to separate the leaves from the tea."

The familiar question of why tea is cooling in hot weather and warming in cold was answered with extracts from a treatise by Robert Hutchison and V. H. Mottram of London. They were quoted to the effect that tea warms the body when cold by making the circulation more brisk, as the constituents in tea help to dilate the superficial blood vessels and render the skin moist. For the same reason a cup of hot tea tends to cool the body in hot weather by moistening the skin and increasing evaporation from the surface. The same authorities, after years of study, declare that the correct time for infusing tea is fully five minutes, and thus agree with Director Beling that such time is required to draw out all the good qualities with which Nature endowed black tea.

One of the most absurd of the fabrications which have sometimes been mentioned in connection with tea was exploded by the lecturer with a quotation from Dr. C. R. Harler, who says, in his book "The Culture and Marketing of Tea", "The idea of the stomach lining being affected adversely by tea is one to be mentioned only to be dismissed as foolish. It is difficult to see how tannin and its products can exert any important degree of astringency or acidity at any stage. A cup of tea contains no more tannin than a four - ounce glass of claret or a two-ounce glass of an astringent red wine."

Returning to the subject of proper tea brewing, the lecturer emphasized that it takes not less than five minutes for the boiling water properly to dilate or expand the leaves to the necessary point of exuding the natural oils and juices they contain. Three minutes or even four only serve to draw out part of the good in tea. Underbrewed tea is not only tasteless, but means so much money wasted, she said.

It's Festival and Mating Time Time Down in Papua; Lasts Four Months

By International News Service

PORT MORESBY, Papua, Feb. 25—Women girdled with raw meat: Dancers showered with fruit and flowers:

Villages heaped with food.

These are some of the sights to been seen anywhere in Papua just now—last weeks of a "harvest festival" that lasts nearly a year and explains in part the fascination of the South Seas for white men.

The festival starts in November, goes on through December and January, and now, in February, it is at last drawing to a close.

What is left of the year—from now till the beginning of November—is spent in preparing for the next harvest festival.

Fields and gardens are specially laid out and tended so that their products shall do justice to the prolonged celebrations.

Guests converge in their hundreds on the villages from the surrounding districts. They arrive singing and brandishing their spears.

As they enter the village they are met by their hosts who beat down the raised spears with wands of sugar cane.

On the "village green"—the central clearing—is heaped with food; stacks of yams, bananas, coconuts, huge sheaves of sugar-cane.

A platform, rigged up at one end of the clearing, is positively buried in food. Each guest is called up to the platform by name to receive a present—usually yams and pork. And here, later, the young girls dance and sway.

Each village celebration consists of a feast that lasts two days. During that time, meat, vegetables, fruits are cooked and served without a pause. Guests are pressed to eat and go on eating till they can eat no more.

A dance takes place. The dancers are pelted with fruits and flowers. These are trodden under foot and add to their exotic scents to an atmosphere already pungently flavored.

The women of the village wear necklaces of betel-nut and edible berries and little else. Round each waist is a girdle of raw meat.

The times comes when all the unattached girls of the village mount the platform lightly clad. They are decorated with flowers and brightly colored leaves. They start to dance.

They sway rhythmically, their grass skirts swinging. One by one they stop, run laughing down from the platform—one by one claimed as the mate of visiting unattached men.

The amount of food consumed at one of these village festivals is so enormous that the hosts often find themselves entirely without supplies for the rest of the year.

Then they rely on the hospitality of those who have been their guests—until the next harvest.

Oldest Animal

The oldest animal is probably the Galapagos island tortoise. While figures on the longevity of animals are not very accurate, it is estimated that these giant tortoises live to the age of two hundred years.

Questions and Answers

What is Southern Spoon bread and does the name have any significance in describing the bread?

Spoon bread is so soft it must be spooned from the dish in which it has been baked. It is served with butter for breakfast or luncheon. With gravy, it is served like a vegetable. Here is a recipe if you would like to try it. Pour 1 cup boiling water over 3 tablespoons of white corn meal; mix. Add 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1 tablespoon sugar. Cook in a double boiler until thick. Stir in 1 cup cooked rice and 1 tablespoon butter. Add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs and 1 cup of milk. Fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into greased baking dish. Place in a pan containing a little hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 35 or 40 minutes.

What kind of pie pans do you recommend? I have heard that the kind of pan used affects the degree of browning obtained.

The pan affects the browning results in that some pans will retain heat and produce a greater brown on the crust than others. The enamel or old-fashioned granite pans are excellent for giving even brown. Glass baking pans produce good browning also, but pans of light color or light weight tend to reflect the heat and do not brown the crust as much.

At what temperature should whole potatoes be baked?

Most cooking charts suggest a temperature of 450 degrees and allow a baking time of 40 to 60 minutes, depending on the size of the potatoes. To prevent the skins from becoming tough, the potatoes should be brushed with fat and a nice glossy finish is obtained for serving them most appetizingly.

Tips On How It's Done

To beat—Use an up and down motion which will enclose air in food and make it light.

To oil pans—Use a pastry brush, and brush the sides and bottom of the pan with oil or other fat.

To mince onions—Cut an end slice from a peeled onion. Cut exposed surface into thin squares to any desired depth. Then cut crosswise in thin slices.

To toast cocoanut—Spread shredded, fresh-keeping cocoanut in a thin layer in a shallow pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until a golden brown. Stir shreds frequently to prevent scorching.

To dredge with flour—Sprinkle flour from a shaker top can, or from a sifter, over the food to be coated.

"Farm Fresh" Milk Isn't Pure Enough For Circle City Dairy

Milk "fresh from the Cow" can be mighty fine milk. But it isn't fine enough for Circle City Dairy Customers. We have to be absolutely sure of the purity of the milk we sell you. And the only way to make sure is to "give it the works" ourselves.

"Giving it the works" is a large order. The finest cows in the country are on our payroll—and we rush their milk to our dairy—in our plant we test the milk for richness and pay a bonus for extra butter fat. We test it for sweetness and we test it for sediment.

And then to make sure our instruments aren't playing any tricks, we pasteurize every drop of milk in sight. Pasteurizing makes milk doubly safe — safe for the tiniest baby in hottest weather. Circle City Dairy Milk has all the rich flavor of "Farm Fresh" Milk. Its delivered to your door as pure as modern science can make it. Canada's Babies Making More and More News

By International News Service

OTTAWA, Feb. 25—Babies! Babies! Babies! Italy's Mussolini, world champion baby-booster, ought to come to Canada and find out how it's done.

The latest baby record in this baby-conscious Dominion has been established in Winnipeg, where a taxi-driver was rushing Mrs. Nettie Ladan seven miles to a hospital. The baby was born in the tax within half a block of the hospital.

A few weeks ago, another baby was born on an Ontario train.

Canada's baby statistics are possibly unequalled by any other country in the world. The Dionne quintuplets are growing prettier and lustier every day. Some day they may "turn 'em away" 'with a vaudeville act.

Then there are the Mahoney quadruplets in New Brunswick, 11 years old and going strong.

In 1931 Canada claimed the first baby ever born in an airplane.

In 1834 a Mrs. Duvall put the finishing touches on another record. She had given birth to nine children in 18 months—quintuplets and quadruplets, a majority of whom survived.

And in Toronto, bets are being placed on the result of the "Baby Sweepstakes"—in which a number of mothers are competing for the $500,000 fortune left by Charles Vance Miller for the one who has the greatest number of babies during the 10 year period ending in October, 1936.

Reveals Important Source of Vital Nutrition Elements

Science Points Out Food Sources Other Than Those in Milk and Leafy Vegetables

IT is said that the ordinary diet of Americans is probably more deficient in Calcium than in any other chemical element. Medical authorities attribute deficiencies in growth and even many diseases to inadequacy in the supply of Calcium.

Another important cause of ill health is lack of a proper proportion of Phosphates in our diet. As is well known, in the process of milling flour a considerable portion of these health-giving Phosphates is eliminated, thus depriving the flour of much of its food value.

Nature requires the constant presence in the system of these two nutritive elements. They are contained in every tissue, nerve and muscle of the body. Science tells us that with an abundant supply of them in the system good health is promoted and, without that supply, disease is unavoidable.

The richest known sources for obtaining Calcium and Phosporous are milk and leafy vegetables. However, most people do not find it pleasant to drink a lot of milk. Likewise, there are many who do not care for a lot of vegetables.

Fortunately for them and for all others too, modern science has found that certain mineral salts (Calcium Phosphates) are also excellent sources of these vital elements. A highly recommended means for obtaining these minerals is through the use of baking powder made with calcium phosphate—all-phosphate baking powder.

Rumford is known the world over as the all-phosphate baking powder. It is a proven fact that there is as much food phosphate in one Rumford biscuit as there is in one and one-half lamb chops, one and three-quarters hen's eggs, two and one-half average servings of oatmeal and one and one-quarter glassfuls of milk.

In other words, when you bake with Rumford you get not only the advantages of perfect leavening action, but the addition of real nutritive elements to your diet as well. Where there are growing children in the family, this double advantage is especially important. It assures the healthy, normal growth of teeth and bones—the development of sound, sturdy bodies.

SALES TAX RULINGS

The sales tax section of the State Tax Commission has issued a number of rulings affecting various lines of business. Those of interest to Pickaway-co residents will be published in this column at intervals.

WAR VETERANS

War veterans who now have licenses issued under the provisions of Section 6351 of the General Code of Ohio are not exempt from the provisions of Section 10 of Amended House Bill No. 134 and must have a vendor's license for each county in which they make sales, providing they do not have a fixed place of business. Such war veterans must collect the tax on all sales made by them, as prescribed in Section 3 of Amended House Bill No.135.

CAFETERIAS

Cafeterias operated by boards of education for the purpose of lunches to pupils, teachers and employees of the school boards will not be required to procure a vendor's license for the operation of such cafeterias and will not be required to collect the tax on sales made through such cafeterias. This ruling has no application to cafeterias operated by parent teachers' associations or other groups, but applies only to cafeterias operated by school boards.

Cafeterias operated by parochial schools and other charitable institutions of learning, constitute "charitable institutions" and where the proceeds go entirely for philanthropic purposes the sales of meals therein are exempt and such institutions are not required to have vendor's licenses if such institutions are not engaged in making taxable sales.

SALES TO O. N. G.

Purchases by the Ohio National Guard through the use of funds provided for that organization in Section 5267 of the General Code of Ohio are not subject to the provisions of Section 2 of Amended House Bill No. 134, as such sales to the state of Ohio and are specifically exempt.

Sales of articles of tangible personal property to members of the Ohio National Guard, who use their own funds in making such purchases are subject tothe tax, regardless of the fact that the article so purchased remains the property of the Ohio National Guard, if and when the person leaves the organization.
